By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL City Council should vote on two pivotal issues Dec. 8, one which will determine the possible purchase of the Hayward Lumber Co. site by the city and another that affects the bitterly debated proposed zoning changes for the entire R-4 district.

The council is scheduled to determine if purchasing the 53,900 square foot property in the R-4 district, currently occupied by Hayward Lumber, is in compliance with the city's general plan.

The council will also decide if the city should conduct an environmental impact report on the proposed zoning changes for the entire R-4 zone. The proposed zoning regulations would increase the density in portions of the district and allow additional commercial uses.

The meeting is scheduled for 4 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 8 in the Carmel Woman's Club.

If the council decides buying the property is against the general plan's directions, it would be illegal for the city to acquire the property.

The Carmel Planning Commission has sent a report to the council stating it believes acquiring the property is in keeping with the dictates of the general plan and the council will decide if it agrees with that recommenda-

The property, owned by Thomas Handley, is the largest parcel in the R-4 district and the largest single piece of developable land in Carmel. It contains some of the most spectacular views of Point Lobos and the Pacific Ocean in the city.

The council is currently negotiating with Handley and his representatives about its. purchase and the city has commissioned an appraisal of the property, which is estimated to be worth between $2 and $3 million.

A postcard survey of Carmel voters conducted by Mayor Clint Eastwood in late summer indicated more than 80 percent of the respondants want the city to buy the proper-

In another item, the council will also decide if it agrees with a recomendation from the planning commission which states the city should compile an EIR on proposed zoning regulations.

The planning commission's recommendation states the EIR should investigate the impact of different density combinations, rezoning portions of the R-4 to residentialcommercial and different uses for the Hayward Lumber Co. site.

According to Sue Hutchinson, Eastwood's aide, the results of the postcard survey show that 27 percent wish the Handley property be used as a park; 18 percent want a park and parking; and 10 percent want it used for parking only. About 18 percent want it used for senior citizen housing, 11 percent of those respondents stating it should include public

Stretching it

Dear Editor:

When Hugo Gerstl, attorney, attempts to define jewelry, he's definitely out of his territory. I really had to chuckle at his interpretation; this time he's really stretching it.

For his information, what Carmel is inundated with is "fine jewelry" stores, gold, silver, etc. What his client wants to open is a "costume jewelry" store. Not precious metals or stones, but nevertheless, to countless women — jewelry.

Now the council can proceed as it sees fit if it accepts my interpretation.

Real shockeroo

Dear Editor:

The amendment passed by Carmel's Planning Commission and now pending before the city council permitting the construction of a parking garage on residential property behind Pine Inn is a real shockeroo. This proposal amends the General Plan that purports to protect us from exactly what this amendment proposes and makes possible.

No easy solution

Dear Editor:

I am presuming upon the hospitality of the Carmel Residents Association, to which I belong, in inviting correspondents to come to one of our meetings. We are many in number and to date there has not been one speaker before either the planning commission or Carmel's City Council that has spoken on behalf of our membership. We have had no verbal representatives, no forum, no mandates. We try, and earnestly, to face issues, and they are plentiful, but can't we all see that? Solutions don't come easily.

Carmel is a small town and those outspoken among us are easily identified, but we would hope that we aren't tagged as being something we're honestly not. Yes, we're concerned, but any genuine Carmelite is (and constantly) endeavoring to keep our community from becoming something other than the town that means so much to us. The hordes may visit, but this is our home.

I don't believe that we think of those who feel differently from some of us as insensitive and we try not to "tag" anybody. Not everybody from Texas is "for" offshore drilling. Not every Carmel resident feels the need to wear a T-shirt that says he "loves" Carmel (nor wear one that says he hates another place or person).

The source of the saying "Come let us reason together" perhaps prompted my suggestion that those who truly want to communicate, come to a CRA meeting some time when they're in town.

Full disclosure

Dear Editor:

The disclosure of information concerning limited edition prints, photographs and sculptures, is not an option for galleries, but rather a requirement by law.

The law passed in 1971 offers the purchasers certain information used to evaluate the originality, rarity and the worth of the art. Businesses in California that regularly engage in sales of multiples are required to post a notice of fering full disclosure.

"California law provides for the disclosure in writing of certain information concerning prints, photographs, and sculpture casts. This information is available to you and you may request to receive it prior to purchase." The full disclosure notice must have been the lawmakers equivalent to educating the public—offering the purchaser "caveat emptor"—buyer beware! You have the right to the information.

The responsibility of sales people and galleries who offer multiples for sale is to correctly and clearly state the following information: (A) whether the multiple is properly attributed to the named artist; (B) whether the multiple was signed by the artist after it was produced; (C) whether the multiple is a reproduction of a work formerly created by the artist in a different medium; (D) whether the purported number of multiples in a limited edition is the actual number; (E) whether there are other editions of the same or virtually the same image; and, (F) whether the master image was destroyed.

If any of this information is false the purchaser is entitled to a refund and possibly treble damages.

Positive thoughts

Dear Editor:

The city of Carmel is currently in negotiation to purchase the controversial Hayward Lumberyard site. The majority of Carmel residents support the acquisition and we should commend city government for its effort in this regard.

Let's be positive and assume the site is acquired by the city. Some will probably say that a problem has been created since a positive use must be found for the property. However, I would say we now have a rare opportunity to exercise our community creativity in developing uses for the property. Let's cast aside negative thoughts and individually provide our thoughts as an aid to city government in use and management of the property. A few of my thoughts follow.

I view the property being used as a resedent-oriented enclave with a mix of the public and private sectors of our economy (a reflection of our national economy). The public sector might include some low-density, low-income housing, a small park or green area, and a community hall for local "town hall" type gatherings.

In the private sector, a portion of the area could be set aside for selected resident-oriented businesses. If desired businesses are not economically feasible, I would suggest a small subsidy granted through below market value rents. In this way, residents needs could be served and made compatible with selected small business entrepreneurs.

We should not fail to grasp this unique opportunity. We can collectively be visionary in our planning and leave a legacy to Carmel that will be lasting because we truly looked toward current and future needs that will enhance the environmental quality of our city.

Parking woes

PARKING IN Carmel can be likened to the famous saying about the weather: Everybody talks about it, but no one does anything about it.

Visitors have their gripes: there's very little parking of more than an hour in the downtown area; employees of Carmel businesses have a similar gripe. Residents who live in or near the downtown area also have their complaints: visitors are parking in front of their homes or blocking their driveways because they can't find anywhere else to park. Residents who live outside the downtown area tend to avoid it because of — you guessed it — lack of parking.

Of course there are efforts underway to relieve the problem, but the wheels of bureaucracy these days move almost as slowly as the traffic on Ocean Avenue on a Saturday afternoon.

It's hard to deny that parking is needed—the need is obvious—what is difficult is how much parking is needed and at what cost, in terms of not only finances, but community character and well being.

Several parking plans are being considered, among them: a two or three-level parking lot at the north end of Sunset Center — the notorious dirt lot; a underground garage in conjunction with the senior citizen housing complex at Fifth and Dolores; and a garage proposed by Pine Inn on Sixth between Lincoln and Monte Verde.

The Pine Inn has an intriguing proposition; they propose to build the parking garage at no cost to the city. The city would own, operate and maintain its level (the second) and the Pine Inn would do the same to its (the lower).

There is a catch, however. The area is zoned residential (R-1) and the general plan will have to be amended to pave the way for a parking structure, which is what the city council will be considering at its Tuesday, Dec. 8 meeting. The planning commission has already recommended such an action.

Making a lot of changes as you go in the general plan isn't exactly the best way to plot the city's growth, but in this case it appears warranted, after all, the general plan essentially provides a framework for growth; it's not a rigid, omniscient document.

There have been some protestations about the proposal, primarily from a new Carmel residents' group called Concerned Carmel Citizens (does that mean others are unconcerned?), who have circulated petitions and fliers against the plan.

Basically the group feels that the garage violates the general plan, will have an adverse impact on the skyline, create noise and pollution problems, increase water use and downgrade adjacent property values.

There's more than meets the eye here.

- The property may be zoned R-1, but it is more a commercial zone. It is surrounded on all four sides by commercial and non-residential uses, hardly a case of encroachment into a residential area.
- Three parking lots already exist there one an unsightly lot with a couple of chemical toilets, one a parking lot for Pine Inn patrons, and another an unimproved lot.
- The garage will be built at no cost to the city — a boon in a city where its residents are clamoring for the city to buy millions of dollars worth of land to preserve as open space. Where is all this money supposed to come from, tax rebate checks?
- It can reduce the impact of cars—of both residents and visitors—that are going around and around city streets in a frustrating and never-ending search for an open space. Spaces can be set aside for residents' use, such as for the library across the street.
- It will not substantially change the skyline of Carmel at that location.
- A suggestion to build senior housing there is admirable, but again, who's going to pay for it? The Carmel Foundation, the most likely organization—already has its hands full with the Fifth and Dolores complex.
- Where is the increased water use to come from?

The upshot of all this is that design plans for the garage haven't even been revealed yet; the proposal is still in its infancy. Let's not throw the baby out with the bathwater until we know all the facts.

Judge rules in favor of city in Laub lawsuit

By DAVID LELAND

PAUL LAUB was left with a scaleddown Clintville and a tarnished reputation last week when a county judge lashed out against the Carmel business man, ruling in favor of the city in the celebrated lawsuit of Carmel vs. Laub.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge John Phillips held that Laub had indeed violated the city's use permit process and zoning codes by illegally expanding his basement boutique called Clintville, where tourists often flock to buy items profiling the town's famous mayor, Clint Eastwood.

Laub has until Dec. 31 to reduce Clintville, located in the Paradise Shopping Mall at Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street, from its current 814 square feet down to 250 square

The 250 square feet is the same measurement that PhotoArt, the business previously occupying Clintville, had in its use permit.

"It's essentially a closet is what they are going to allow him to have," said Mike Stamp, an attorney representing Carmel in the case.

The small area will also be subject to the city's fire and safety codes, which mandate ample aisles and access points, further limiting the usable merchandising space, Stamp said.

The ruling in no way stops Laub from selling Eastwood T-shirts, posters, mugs and such, a decision which left the mayor undecided on whether he will pursue his own legal remedy for curtailing what he calls "unlicensed" use of his name.

"It's not a victory for that (selling Eastwood products)," he said. "That's a personal matter."

Eastwood stopped short of saying if he would file a lawsuit against the flamboyant Laub, but added that he is tiring of the businessman's antics.

Laub, who opposed Eastwood in the 1986 mayoral election before withdrawing, and the mayor have gone head to head several times in recent months over Clintville.

While Laub has donated some of the proceeds from Clintville to the mayor's fund, which benefits the Carmel Youth Center, last spring he began using those funds for his attorney fees, claiming that the city was forcing him to spend money to defend his position.

During one Carmel City Council meeting. Eastwood and Laub engaged in a shouting match, which found the mayor particularly opposed to Laub's marketing techniques — namely women's underwear with "Make My Night" stenciled on front.

Laub said he will not make any move toward redesigning Clintville until the final judgment is written.

The decision issued last week is called a tentative judgment; each side has 10 days to approach the judge and ask for clarification.

Laub added that he may move Clintville upstairs (on the main floor or mezzanine) rather than attempt to cram a large amount of merchandise into such a small space in the

Laub said the only concern he has is that Eastwood won't run for a second term as

"If Clint goes out in April, that's the only problem," he said. "Then what am I going EASTWOOD, IS not the only one who believes Laub can present a less than totally honest picture in his business matters.

In his 26-page decision, Phillips devotes an entire section focusing on the "credibility"

"A fact of great significance in this lawsuit, which cannot be ignored by the court, is the personal credibility of defendant Paul Laub," Phillips wrote in his decision.

During the weeklong trial last October, Phillips repeatedly warned Laub and his attorney, Hugo Gerstl, against grandstanding and taking up the court's time with irrelevant matters and issues that don't have the facts to bear them out.

Phillips cites, as an example, Laub's testimony on exactly where his business office is located — Laub said he did not operate an office at Paradise.

But when Phillips paid a visit to the shopping mall as part of the trial, he found just the opposite to be true.

"Despite the plain fact that it is an office in every sense of the word, Laub testified that it is not an office," remarked Phillips in his

Phillips had further trouble with Laub's assertion that no gun sales took place at

"Laub also testified no gun sales occurred the Paradise building." Phillips wrote. "Yet, the federal permit for gun sales lists the Paradise building as the principal place of business. Also, the required records for gun sales was kept at the Paradise office."

While Laub said he was unhappy with the lambasting he took by the judge, he was not dismayed by the decision that also orders a decrease in the size of the mezzanine.

Phillips found that Laub had illegally increased the size of the mezzanine by removing a partition, which goes against the nonconforming use permit issued for that retail Stamp said he marvels at the tenacity of Laub and his sometimes-theatrical attorney, Gerstl.

"He's (Laub) the ultimate showman," Stamp said. "He finds victory in defeat."

Laub, in a written statement, said the city won only a "hollow victory" since he feels that the primary purpose of the lawsuit was to close down his Clintville operation. The city has steadfastly denied the charge.

In addition to being ordered to secure a. business license for his silkscreening and landlord businessess. Laub is liable for back taxes and penalties for a "commercial landlord business" and owes the city the sum of $2,307.72.

Laub said that no other commercial landlord is so assessed and he believes this action could have a "chilling effect" on the city's commercial community, because landlords would pass this tax on to tenants and ultimately consumers.

Laub also must reimburse Carmel for court costs such as depositions, filing fees and subpoenas, Stamp said.

He added those charges would run about $500 or $600.

Stamp said many of the trial's expenses could have been avoided if Laub had simplified matters somewhat.

"If their purpose was to punish the city, I don't know what they were doing," said Stamp, citing, as an example, eight depositions Gerstl requested, even though none of that material was used at the trial.

In a statement issued by Gerstl Monday, it appears the fight is far from over.

Gerstl said that "Laub has advised him to pursue all avenues of challenge and appeal legally available, up to and including the Supreme Court of the United States...

The judgment issued by Phillips is a prohibitory injunction.

That means that whether or not Laub appeals to a higher court, the zoning and health and safety changes called for in the decision for Paradise must be made by year's end or Laub could be held in contempt of court.

On Gerstl's advice, Laub said he would not "discuss additional details of the decision, pending the court's consideration of further documents and the appeal."

Neighbors group seeks city backing on roadway plan

By DAVID LELAND

THE CARMEL City Council, at its Dec. 8 meeting, will be asked to take a stand that limits the widening of Carpenter Street in the next 20 years.

The Northeast Carmel Neighbors Association is reacting to a proposal made by Caltrans which suggests that Carpenter Street may need to be widened to four lanes shortly after the Hatton Canyon Freeway is built to accomodate increased traffic.

The residents claim that Ocean Avenue is already designed to accomodate a large amount of traffic and that the widening of Carpenter Street is senseless.

The city council will meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 8 at the Carmel Woman's Club at Eighth Avenue and San Carlos Street.

Caltrans plans to have the $25 million project on line by 1990, which will realign portions of Highway 1 and make the 2.8-mile stretch of road into four lanes through Hatton Canyon.

"We believe that it is only through strong city council action that our concerns will be acted upon by Caltrans," said Clayton Anderson, association president.

In its plea to the council for support, Anderson cites data from the Duffy Report, which shows 32 percent of the traffic entering, seeneral plan the same, the residents cite three Carmel via Ocean Avenue and only 16 per-) , goals: 1) retaining or expanding the residencent on Carpenter Street.

council to notify Caltrans that all planning and designing of the Hatton Canyon Freeway should maintain Ocean Avenue as a main; sing visitor in relation to permanent residents; artery and an additional environmental impact report should be done concerning Carpenter Street and Rio Road.

OTHER AGENDA items scheduled for next week's meeting include:

 Receiving a report from the Carmel Planning Commission on the Handley property and the consideration of an environmental report for that land. The socalled R-4 zone issue has created considerable controversy in the city. (See related story in this issue.)

• The council will hear a request from Roscelli Corp. asking for a 6.5 percent increase in garbage collection rates for both residential and commercial customers.

If approved, residential customers would see trash bills rise from $5.40 a month to $5.75 a month, while commercial rates would inch up from $54.75 to $58.30 each month.

• There will be a second reading of an ordinance which will amend the general plan to allow a parking facility at corner of Sixth Avenue and Lincoln Street in conjunction with the Pine Inn.

There is concern by some residents that such a venture will permanently change the character of Carmel.

In a flier seeking support for keeping the tial area; 2) prohibit conversion of residential Specifically, the residents are asking the (1 to commercial; 3) discourage any new <sup>3</sup>development that detracts from the character of Carmel; 4) reverse a trend toward increas-garage would be built on the city-owned property that had been slated for a joint venture between the Pine Inn and the city before the Harrison Memorial Library Annex's site was changed to the vacated Crocker Bank building.

The Pine Inn has approached the city with an offer to build the garage, with the city maintaining its portion after construction is completed.

• The council will hear two appeals of planning commission decisions by Sue Chitpanich and Galina Pulwers Thorn.

Chitpanich was denied a use permit to operate a gift shop on the southwest corner of Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue.

Pulweres Thorn was denied a use permit for the retail sale of jewelry on the southeast corner of Ocean Avenue and Lincoln Street.

Water waste upsets supes, seek 'leaks' in system

By DAVID LELAND

FACING A building moratorium if water consumption in some unincorporated areas of the county is not slowed, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Tuesday directed county staff to plug the leaks.

The board was responding to a report from Monterey Peninsula Water Management District general manager Bruce Buel, which said the county is at 97.7 percent of its yearly allocation from California-American Water

Calling the rise in water consumption "alarming," Buel pointed out that current figures don't even take into account the lots of record that have building permits and have not yet begun construction.

Members of the board appeared somewhat surprised as they received the report and unanimously directed the planning and flood control departments to meet with the water management district and Cal-Am in an attempt to find the source of the problem.

"It's a great disappointment to me to see these figures that are so much more than we expected," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman. "We should be decreasing consumption — there's something totally wrong here."

What seems to be wrong, according to 1st District Supervisor Marc Del Piero, is the basic amount of water which Cal-Am

Big Sur trust buys 5-acre coastal property

A VIEW of the 5-acre parcel of land in Big Sur purchased by the Big Sur Land Trust from longtime resident and activist Margaret Owings. (Morley Baer photo.) WITH PROTECTING the scenic beauty of the Big Sur Coast as its primary objective, The Big Sur Land Trust recently purchased a 5-acre parcel from long-time resident and conservationist, Margaret Owings.

Stretching westerly from Highway 1 to the Pacific Ocean, this parcel is considered to be a viewshed lot (lands seen from Highway 1) by Monterey County. Following the example of a traditional bargain sale, the purchase price was considerably less than the market value of the property, thanks to the generosity of Owings, said Brian Steen, executive director of the trust. Purchase funds were appropriated to the land trust through the 1984 Park and Recreation Bond Act authored by Assemblyman Sam Farr.

Steen said purchase sets an important precedent as an example of private/public cooperation where the public benefits of land conservation can be realized without costly public ownership. The same cooperative ethic is embodied in the purposes of the upcoming 1988 Bond Act Initiative which will provide $25 million for the acquisition of scenic viewshed properties if approved by California voters next spring, he said.

Owings, along with her husband, Nathaniel, had purchased this and other land around their residence to keep it in open space. To insure that these scenic lands would remain in its natural state forever, the Owings donated an adjacent 24-acre parcel to the land trust in 1981.

Commedning on the Land Trust purchase, Owings said, "I'm happy to know that this land between the road and the sea will remain undisturbed."

Working as a California non-profit corporation since 1978, The Big Sur Land Trust has completed 36 transaction preserving 5,827 acres. The appraised value of these properties and/or restrictions is in excess of $11 million. To fund its programs, the land trust upon tax deductible donations from the general public.

Goodwill doesn't do phone solicitations

RESIDENTS OF the Monterey Bay region have been receiving phone calls soliciting donations, by people representing themselves as being from Goodwill Industries.

Michael Paul, President of Goodwill Industries of Santa Cruz, Monterey & San Luis Obispo Counties, said that "Goodwill does not, never has, solicited donations by telephone. Whoever is making these calls does not represent Goodwill."

Donations to Goodwill's fleet of 'Attended Donation Stations' throughout Monterey and Santa Cruz Counties, or picked up by prior arrangement by Goodwill's trucks, provide financial support for the agency's vacational rehabilitation programs for disabled people.

To learn the location of the nearest Goodwill Donation Station, to arrange for a pickup, or for other information, call Goodwill at 423-8611, 449-7079, or 646-8567.

Goodwill needs those donations, and donors want their donations to go to the cause they are given for.

Council to take on issue of controversial R-4 zone

Preliminary estimates project the city would pay $25,000 for the report and that it would take six months to complete.

Property owners' representatives and the city have been negotiating on zoning regulations for the area since 1984.

The R-4, located primarily between Fifth and Third avenues and Torres and Mission streets, borders the residential district and the commercial district. It was intended to be a buffer zone between single-family homes and commercial activity.

The Northeast Carmel Neighbors Association, a group comprised primarily of neighbors of the R-4 district, has collected more than 1,300 signatures on a petition asking the city to mandate an EIR on the zone.

Additionally, a planning commission meeting on the R-4 earlier this year initiated such a public response it had to be moved to Sunset Center to accommodate everyone; participants still could not fit into the room. Most spoke against the proposed zoning changes and asked that the city conduct an EIR.

City Atty. Don Freeman told the planning commission that if there is sufficient public controversy, state law dictates an EIR must be conducted.

Advocates of an EIR have expressed concern about regulation changes that would increase the allowed density from 33 units per acre to 66 units per acre in portions of the R-4.

That density is greater than any allowed on the peninsula, would create tremendous traffic problems and be unsightly, those who object to the changes have stated.

Since the largest parcel in the R-4 may be purchased by the city, other property owners in the district believe the EIR should either be waived for their properties or a decision delayed until the city makes a determination about the Handley property.

One R-4 property owner, Olive Smith, has requested that the city remove her property from the district so she might proceed with plans to build. Smith owns one lot on Mission Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues. Her request will be considered by the city council Dec. 8.

Attorney James Heisinger, representing R-4 property owner Robert Murphy, said they believe making a decision on an EIR is "premature."

The council, Heisigner said, should wait until it decides what it will do with the Hayward Lumber Co. location.

Murphy owns a 20,000 square foot parcel on the corner of Junipero and Fourth avenues. The proposed zoning regulations would increase its density from 33 to 66 units per acre, allowing Murphy to build approximately 28 apartments on his property.

Heisigner said that he will make a presentation to the city council about what could be built on Murphy's parcel given all the restrictions contained in the zoning changes and proposed specific plan.

The zoning changes include much more restrictive lot coverage allowances and set-backs.

Birth mothers group meets every month

A BIRTH mothers support group meets once a month at the Childrens Services Center in Monterey.

Birth mothers are women who have given their children up for adoption; the group allows these women to share their feelings with others, according to Terri Livingston, who has been a member of the year-old group.

"There are a lot of women out there...and there's a lot of pain involved," she said. "This gives them a chance to talk about it. We're not a search group, but we have information on it."

The support group meets at 7 p.m. on the last Wednesday of each month at the center at 484 Lighthouse in New Monterey. More information can be obtained by calling either Carol Bishop or Gayle Ward at Childrens Services Center of Monterey County, 649-3033.

INVESTIGATE SAVING PLAN OF UNCEL SAM

During the war the government offered war savings stamps, paying about 4 per cent as a method of saving for people for small means. Since the war, and to take the place of war savings stamps, the government offered Treasury savings certificates in denominations of $25, $100 and $1,000, now sold it investors at $20.50, $82 and $820, respectively. They pay 4 percent if held until maturity, five years from the date of issue. About $625,000,000 of war savings stamps, series of 1918, became due January 1st, 1923, and the government now offers to issue treasury savings certificates in exchange for Saving has furnished the life blood for many nations and insures prosperity to the people. The government is doing everything possible to encourage saving in the United States by offering sound and attractive securities for the investment of small sums. If you want to save, and insure your future, it would pay you to investigate Uncle Sam's savings system.

HIGHWAY SIGNS CLARIFY DIRECTIONS FOR THRU TRAFFIC

A certain element of ambiguity as to Carmel's position on Highway No. 1 was cleared up over the week-end, when new automobile association signs were erected at the highway entrance to the village. The signs indicate that San Francisco will be found straight north, and that San Luis Obispo will be found straight south. This will deprive passing motorists of the excuse of driving into the village to ask directions, and, presumably will winnow out all tourists except those who want to hitch their horses and stay a while.

AROUND THE TOWN Something's Afoot

Last night Dr. James E. Gilman threw the U.S. Constitution, a raft of legal citations, and charges of discrimination at the city council, claiming that a proposed amendment to the municipal code which would prohibit doctors, lawyers, architects and other professionals from operating out of their homes was demonstrably illegal because it denied a man the right to earn a livelihood, and discriminated between classes.

Gilman's point was that artists, writers, musicians and teachers, who would be untouched by the amendment, were just as much professionals as were his own particular species, and he machine-gunned an admiring council with a barrage of New York and Georgia cases to prove it.

His counter-offense succeeded, at least, in delaying matters, to permit city attorney John Morse to study the citations which Dr. Gilman, who is a podiatrist (foot specialist), had presented.

The dramatic force of Gilman's protest was evidenced by a glorious Freudian stumble of Morse, who advised the council that "it might do whatever it saw foot," but that further study seemed to be in order.

COUNCIL TO TACKLE RESTAURANT ISSUE

A proposed city ordinance that would curtail restaurant expansion in Carmel will be examined Monday at a public hearing called by the City Council. The controversial proposal would force any new restaurant to provide one public parking space for each four seats in its dining room. Existing restaurants that expand also would be required to observe the ration on any new seating.

No on-site parking is available in the Carmel commercial district and it would be likely that new restaurants would have to pay the current $13,750 in-lieu parking fee. The onetime fee applies to one parking spot.

A new restaurant that seated 60 diners, for instance, would face in-lieu parking fees of more than $250,000 under the proposed ordinance. No restaurant provides more than two in-lieu spaces at this time, according to the city building department.

UNDERGROUNDING OF UTILITIES TO START IN '83

The final phase of a 20-year plan to underground utilities in most of downtown Carmel will begin in February.

Notices that the work will begin have been mailed to commercial property owners and store managers on Dolores and Mission streets between Sixth and Fifth avenues, and on Mission Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

Supes upset at over-consumption of water in county

budgets to each single-family dwelling an-

Cal-Am figures say each residence will use .4 acre feet of water annually, which Del Piero said is far too low.

"Historically that has not been the number we experience in construction," he said. "We anticipate one acre foot per house."

Strasser Kauffman said coming up with a realistic figure on acre use per household should be of primary importance to the staff while preparing their report - due within two months.

She added that if that .4 figure is wrong, all of the projected growth estimates figured into the New San Clemente Dam may need to be revised.

The staff, during the next two months, will also examine statistics that chronicle Cal-Am customers who are using more than their share of water.

Strasser Kauffman placed the blame on someone other than private citizens.

"People are quite aware that water resources are limited," she said. "It's difficult to understand why the figures are so high."

Strasser Kaffman emphasized that the rise in water consumption during the last two months has nothing to do with the luxury hotel at Spanish Bay, which has been watering its golf course for more than a year.

She added, however, that watering golf courses could be a large part of the problem.

DRASTIC MEASURES could take place if county officials cannot find a way to stop the increased flow of water, which is draining precious reserves.

The most far-reaching solution could come in the form of a complete shutdown of any construction in the unincorported areas of the county served by Cal-Am.

For residents of Carmel Valley, who recently had a seven-year building moratorium lifted after the adoption of the Carmel Valley Master Plan, the effect of such a measure could be devastating.

"It (a moratorium) affects ordinary citizens," Strasser Kauffman said. "They are the ones who get hurt by a shutdown."

Strasser Kauffman cited the immediate economic impacts of a moratorium, such as on tradesmen and contractors who may be forced out of work.

She added that next week the county staff will meet with a legal counsel to explore any legal ramifications of cancelling building in areas served by Cal-Am.

In the short run, vacant lots that have a building permit could be stalled, while those homes already under construction could be stopped.

Nineteen building permits were issued in the past two months, according to county planners: five in Carmel Valley, two in the Carmel area, and 12 in the Del Monte Forest.

The idea of not being able to build private homes on vacant lots of record is especially distressing to Strasser Kauffman, who has supported orderly building.

"With the usage up to this extent, we cannot guarantee water to build on legal lots of record," she said.

The planning department declined to offer any immediate suggestions to the board this week, and instead simply stated the problem.

"There is a major discrepancy between new uses and the water being provided by Cal-Am," said Nick Chiulos, staff planner.

vacant lots of record which were granted an allocation under the board's existing water allocation plan," he wrote in his report.

The current water allocation plan expires in April of 1988.

Agreeing was Bob Slimmon, director of planning.

Planners' meeting set for Dec. 9

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Commission will have a variety of items on the agenda when it meets at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 9 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

However, by press time, it is not known what will happen to some of the major items on the agenda.

Though Ted and Bob Leidig's application to build 10 new second-story apartments over the Court of the Fountains is currently scheduled to be on the agenda, what exactly the commission will review is unknown at this time. The application has been continued several times at the Leidigs' request.

The commission has been debating parking requirements and "ambiance" of the building for some time, and will probably continue that review. No major decisions are scheduled to be made on the application.

Also tenuous is the commission's discussion and vote on a sign ordinance revision. The ordinance includes changes to it that will permit the city to review interior signs that are up to 144 square inches and can be seen from the public right of way.

The item could be continued, however, while commissioners discuss what kinds of revisions should be included in the ordinance.

Currently on the agenda are:

· A review of a master use permit for a small building on the only vacant lot left in the commercial district.

Jack Hakim-Baba has applied to build a small commercial building behind Sade's bar and facing out on to the back portion of the Court of the Golden Bough.

The two-story building is planned to have about 600 square feet on the first floor and 600 square feet of office space on the second floor.

The statute of limitations has run out on a previous use permit for a similar building in the same site and the owner has reapplied, requesting office rather than residential space on the second level.

• A use permit amendment for Sunset Shoes on Ocean Avenue. Owner Robert Frazier has applied to carry some clothing along with shoes.

 A use permit for a store which would sell items for cats. The Cat House would be located in The Mall on San Carlos Street.

Santa is Calling program begins

SANTA CLAUS in marking his phone list this week and Carmel area children are invited to register for a call.

This community program, sponsored by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Recreation Department and Carmel Foundation, is designed for children 3-8 years old.

"Santa is Calling" matches a volunteer Santa or Mrs. Claus, with a youngster. This is for both senior citizens and the children, said Beth Kastrup, recreation director.

On Sunday, Dec. 20 between 2-6 p.m., Santa will call pre-registered children. Parents can register their child by completing a brief child profile sheet available at the Recreation Department, located at Fourth Avenue and Torres Street by Dec. 16.

The Recreation Department is also looking for any extra Santas in the community who would like to spend about one-half hour calling children. If you would like to volunteer or know a child who would like to receive a call, please call the Recreation Department at 626-1255.

Tree-lighting ceremony set for Thursday, Dec. 3

THE CITY of Carmel's annual tree-lighting ceremony will be held Dec. 3 at Devendorf Park.

The ceremony will be held at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 3.

Complimentary cookies and hot cider will be served from the Carmel Youth Center's Bingmobiles at the park.

In addition, entertainment will be provided by singers from the Frohman Academy and Carmel Caroling Company. Once again Steve Tosh will be playing the keyboards during the yearly event. Santa will also be on hand to pass out candy canes to the kiddies.

After the ceremonies, Mayor Clint Eastwood will hand out awards for winners of the Carmel Business Association's annual window-decorating contest.

For more information on the event contact either city hall or the Carmel Business Association.

City recreation department schedules holiday programs

By DAVID LELAND

TCHE CHRISTMAS holidays can be trying times, with youngsters running underfoot or lounging on the couch while waiting for Christmas morning to arrive.

But before shipping your kids off to the North Pole, perhaps you should contact the Carmel Recreation Department, which has some wonderful activities for youngsters planned for the holidays.

Here is a list of holiday programs of fered by the recreation department in conjunction with the Carmel Unified School District:

Kids in the Kitchen

Send your child to this morning workshop, while you complete last-minute holiday shopping. Simple seasonal projects are planned which will teach beginning cooking skills. Meals and desserts will be created, with the course fee including materials.

The program will be offered from 10 a.m. to noon Monday, Dec. 21 at Carmel Middle School Room A-1. Children 5-7 may enroll for a $9 fee in this class instructed by Geralyn

Holiday Chef

Learn how to plan and prepare a holiday lunch. Students will spend the morning in the kitchen and then set the table for the feast they've created. The course fee includes materials.

The program will be offered from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 22 at Carmel Middle School Room A-1. Children 8 and over may enroll for a $14 fee in this class instructed by Geralyn Maul.

Holiday Ornaments

Students can make their own holiday ornaments to decorate their tree or use as a gift. Treat your child to a morning of holiday fun.

The program will be offered from 9 to 10:30 a.m. (5-7 years old) and 10:30 a.m. to noon (8-13 years old) Wednesday, Dec. 23 at Carmel Youth Center. The fee is $8 for this course instructed by Geralyn Maul.

Northeast neighbors meeting Dec. 7

THE NORTHEAST Carmel Neighbors Association will hold its monthly meeting at 5 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 7, at the Carmel Youth Center. The meeting will combine social and business activities.

Members are urged to bring a guest and the following items in celebration of the holiday season: a Christmas tree ornament (a tree will be decorated), a can(s) of food for donation to the Salvation Army, and a refreshment, i.e., dip, hors d'oeuvre, etc. (outstanding culinary skill will be awarded a surprise gift for palate and visual creativity). Also, members should practice their musical scales and review the Christmas carols to participate in group singing.

On the business side, the Nominating Committee will report its recommendation for two new board members, Block Captain Chairman, and Community Liaison. Vice president Stephen Poohar will provide details and a recommendation regarding incorporation of the association.

Geographically the association represents northeast Carmel, however, the organization is a community organization ultimately concerned with enhancing the total environment. All Carmel residents are invited to be guests and share in this community activity.

For further information call Woody Salmonson at 624-5576.

Red Cross sets free blood pressure test

This is winter as we know it. This is the year-end as we expect it.

And one of the year-end tax strategies that most investors consider while they're worrying about whether or not they should buy a new umbrella is the time-honored and dollarsaving gambit called the bond swap.

The bond swap is essentially a transaction whereby the investor sells a bond (or bonds) at a loss and simultaneously purchases entirely different bonds in a like amount with comparable coupons and maturities.

Please note: the key concept here is the repurchase of comparable but not exact coupons or maturities.

For example, an investor might sell $50,000 worth of a California General Obligation bond with a 6 percent coupon and a maturity date of 1999.

Result? If the bonds have a market value of $46,000, the investor loses $4,000.

Next the investor would buy $50,000 face value of City of Monterey bonds that mature in the year 2002 and have a 6.1 percent

Assuming that the cost has been calculated in advance to be about equal to the proceeds form the pervious sale, the investment concept remains intact: the invested dollars will appreciate to par at maturity and the income stream will remain reasonably intact.

The point of all this, remember, is to create a taxable event, the $4,000 capital loss that can be used to offset capital gains of the past

The IRS requires that the bond issues invovled in a swap cannot be "substantially identical." If they are, the trade is ruled a wash sale and the tax loss will be disallowed.

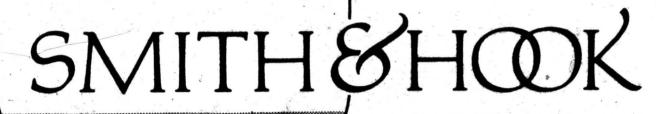

When in doubt, a person should swap the bonds issued by different municipalities to avoid a wash sale. Otherwise, the bonds involved must have a significant difference in coupon or maturities.

But if you're truly in doubt about how this should be done, contact your stockbrocker.

Even your accountant welcomes the services of a broker when swap season arrives.

Perhaps it's the Christmas spirit.

(Messrs. Piazza and Bloom, associate vice presidents at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., can be contacted for additional information, at 373-1861 or P.O. Box 631, Monterey 93940.)

Miracle workers

Christmas is in the Air" (the theme this season), and we all know that the Christmas season has begun in earnest when the turkey leftovers are gone and the Festival of Trees opens its doors at the Monterey Fairgrounds.

"Miracle workers. That's what I call them," glowed Hap Minnis, general chairperson for the 1987 Festival of Trees. "All of these wonderful volunteers work all year to create and produce original, artistic, entirely handcrafted decorations to adorn 31 commissioned trees currently on display."

These trees are truly a dazzling sight to behold and "miracle" may be one of the words that pop into your mind when your eyes engulf them. They are a Christmas fairyland of lights, art, and the true spirit of Christmas - giving.

If you have walked by Holman House in Pacific Grove anytime this past year, you probably heard laughter wafting out the windows. If laughter is a miracle of healing and good health, then these ladies must be the healthiest people in the area. Many have been working (and laughing) for the festival for years.

Chief designing aritst, Mimi Weingarten of Pebble Beach, has devoted 19 years (since its inception), to this most unusual project to raise money for the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art. Mimi, a professionally trained artist, is represented in Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C., with some of her ornament designs and she continues to astound everyone with her artistic creation year after year.

For example, for the tree "Dennis At the New Park," (timely with Dennis The Menace Park re-opening this month in Monterey), Mimi took engineering plans for play equipment and reproduced them all to scale for the ornaments. Such devotion to detail is amazing. There is no other group in the United States (or anywhere in the world), that produces such a spectacular sight.

As for the laughter, it is evoked by such humor as referring to one tree as "Christmas-down-the-drain." Actually, the title for this marvelous tree is "Marbelous Christmas" commissioned by Marzi Sink Factory with elegant pink sinks (fashioned from Champagne glasses), tiny shells for soap dishes, mirrors and tiles all detailed to the proper scale.

Other themes include: "Fishmongers' Christmas" with fishermen holding real working reels and bags of real crabs on ice — with the ice appearing to the eye as the real thing. Another minor miracle.

"Off, Off & Away" is a tree with elves on glider planes, hot air balloons, helicopters, and parachutes. "Animal Cracker Tree" for Sal Cardinalle holds recreations inspired by the edible crackers (clowns, cotton candy cones, tigers in a cage). "Along the Mission Trail" for Carmel Mission Inn holds miniature missions, fountains, birds, and donkey carts. Hayward Lumber tree is authentic and elegant with Victorian houses and fireplaces with log carriers.

"Swanlake" is the theme choice for Christian's Jewelry because of the penchant for swans. Water lilies are bedecked with irridescent gossamer dragonflies and butterflies so glowing that one expects them to flutter into flight right off the træ.

"Homestead Christmas" is nostalgic charm for Country Home Care with black and silver old-fashioned pot-bellied wood stoves, pickle barrels, etc. "La Posada" with Mexican procession is the theme for Dr. Richtar Koleszar and Dr. Jack McBride (who collect donated lenses and fit them for use for the poor children in Mexico and Central America). The opera Carmen is an array of charging bulls, torreadors, red roses, four scenes from the opera, Spanish combs and Carmens, of course.

If we could find works to adequately describe these tree decorations you wouldn't believe me. So, it's best to go and see for yourselves.

"Festival workship volunteers have contributed 100,00 funinfested hours to produce the festival," said workshop chairperson Patricia Totten of Pebble Beach. Maribel Breyer has worked for 10 years, as has Francisca Schultz, who came here from Munich, Germany in 1927 via New York.

When asked had she always known how to sew, she replied, "Here kids in kindergarten paint. In Europe we started knitting and sewing in our kindergarten pinafores. Once, later in school when I was told to paint a flower I couldn't do it, so I ate it."

Mrs. Schultz, who has had an interesting and varied background adds, "Everybody is so nice here. This gives me a lot of satisfaction and keeps me from being lonely. But, I have made so many Santas — if I see one in the street I may hiss at him," she added with a twinkle in her eyes.

Her father was bodyguard to the Prince of Bavaria and among her adventures are: being one of the first people to visit his new ranch in Southern California with William Randolph Hearst and Marion Davies; meeting (among others) Anthony Eden and Charles Lindberg at San Carlos Ranch; seeing the last tennis match by the two great Helens (Wills Moody and Jacobson). She and her husband owned a restaurant (one of only six allowed in Carmel in the 1930s), at the location where the Gold Fork is now.

"I never made a shoe in my life before, but now I sit at home and laugh while I work on these tennis shoes for the reindeer. It's fun!" declared Laverne Ostermeyer as she held a

Carolyn Cunningham (a six-year workshop veteran and creator of the wonderful carolers and street lamps), said, "I like handcrafts and I like the things this group does. They are wonderful. There is a tremendous amount of talent here."

Anita Seibel (of Pacific Grove and a four-year volunteer), told us, "I like the smell of the trees. I love seeing the trees every year — stepping inside to see them all decorated." Another Pagrovian Vesta Redmond (who has put in three and a half years), feels this way, "These ladies are great and it is so much fun to work with them."

Patricia Totten of Pebble is head of the Country Store workshop that has expanded its space at the festival as well as its scope of production in 1987 by adding decorated "table trees" for the first time. The Country Store offers a larger variety of items for children and adults, tree decorations, vinegars, jams, baked goods and items for the Christmas season in general.

Festival of Trees is the largest community Christmas celebration in the area and charter buses disgorge passengers by the scores from the cities for miles around. They come for the sight and for the shopping. This year they have the option of touring "La Mirada" as well as experiencing the festival. Viewing time lines up like this: Today is "senior citizens day" with tea from 2 to 4 p.m. (Open: 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.) Friday honors the military, Saturday is "Children's Day" with a visit from Santa, special entertainment and a chance to see "The Mouse House." Sunday, the final day, there is a brunch from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., for $8. To reserve call 624-7105. Festival

MINIACI NAMED MCB VICE PRESIDENT

Charles T. Chrietzberg, chairman and chief executive officer of Monterey County Bank, announced the appointment of Patricia A. Miniaci of Carmel as vice president

In her position as vice president, Miniaci is responsible for assisting in the overall administration of the bank, as well as advertising/marketing and personnel.

With 17 years experience at Monterey Savings and Loan Association, Miniaci is well-qualified for her new duties. She worked her way up the ladder there from teller to senior vice president, until her "retirement" in 1982.

Since that time, she has been at home with her two children with two short stints, one at the 7th District Agricultural Association and the other at Dimension Five Consultants.

She was Secretary of the Year in 1967 for the Monterey Peninsula and has been active in the Monterey History and Art Association, the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, United Way, Monterey Bay Area Girl Scout Council, Professional Secretaries International, advisory boards for Monterey Peninsula College and the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District. She is also currently a member of the Community Hospital Auxiliary.

Miniaci attended Carmel High School, Monterey Peninsula College, Hartnell College and is a graduate of the Institute of Financial Education.

An "All Day Draw," in which a cooperative group of artists and students share the cost of professional art models, is planned the first Saturday of each month at the Pacific Grove Art Center.

Cost is $10 for the day, $6 per half day. All Day Draw hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Artists and students will work independently at easels and tables provided. There will be a potluck lunch for those who choose to participate. To sign up, call the center, 375-2208, or Anita Benson, 649-4657.

Scottish, Italian films shown

The Monterey Institute International Film Series will screen Restless Natives and Love and Anarchy.

Restless Natives follows two down-on-their-luck losers who become unlikely folk heroes in this comedy from Scotland. The film follows the exploits of this duo as they pilfer from tourists along the scenic highlands of Scotland. Restless Natives will be shown Friday through Sunday, Dec. 4-6.

Giancarlo Giannini stars in Love and Anarchy, a 1974 film by Lina Wertmuller. The movie focuses on Tunin, a shy and awkward peasant who arrives in Rome in the early '30s determined to kill Mussolini. His anarchist contact is one of the ladies in a luxurious bordello who hides him there as her cousin. When he falls in love with a young prostitute, Love and Anarchy explodes. The film will be shown in Italian with subtitles on Wednesday, Dec. 9.

Both films begin at 8:15 p.m. in Morse Auditorium, 440 Van Buren, Monterey. Admission is $3.50 general, $3 students, $2.75 senior citizens. For additional information, call 626-1730.

Santa to deliver presents in Mid-Valley

Santa Claus will be making deliveries to families living within the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire District (Rancho San Carlos Road west to western boundaries of Garland Park). Santa will deliver presents to children in a Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Truck from 3 to 5 p.m. on Christmas Eve.

If you wish to have a present delivered, drop off the wrapped gift at the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Station, 8455 Carmel Valley Road, any day between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. on or before Dec. 23.

Gifts should be wrapped and identified with child's name, address and telephone number. One package per child will be accepted.

Piano recitals happening at MPC

The piano ensembles led by Monterey Peninsula College Instructor Wade Parks will fill the air with music when his 12 performers conduct their recital at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6 in the MPC Music Hall.

Admission is free to this concert of classical and contemporary music. Monterey Peninsula College is located at 980 Fremont in Monterey, and the music hall can be reached from Via Mirada and Fishnet Road. Parking is free on Sunday.

This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home. And you.

So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ivy. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof and underneath your house where it is exposed.

Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

Remember. Only you can prevent forest fires.

BUSINESS

By Nancy Hills

In the spirit

It's THAT time of the year when everyone starts to hunker down for the great shopping experience.

Carmel is no exception and the businesses in town certainly can accommodate the needs of many shoppers. I would say that Carmel certainly has its share of gift shops — many of which offer some very fine merchandise.

People who would like to see certain stores and shops stay in business should take this opportunity to patronize those establishments.

Otherwise, you'll be reading about how they have packed their bags and left. So give yourself the best present you can, a town that has the shops and ambiance you want, by supporting the local merchants that contribute to that atmosphere.

If you find that you can't make it during the day, many shops are staying open until 8 p.m. on Thursdays before Christmas. The extra shopping hours have been organized by the Carmel Business Association.

ARTISTRY

This isn't exactly brand new, but when Biz Beat is done on and off, a lot of new shops get skipped over until I can get to them.

The Studio Theater on Dolores Street closed earlier this year but the space has reopened as Village Artistry II. Geraldine McFall, owner of Village Artistry I, has created in the space a contemporary fine crafts store, specializing in crafts designed for use as home furnishings.

Handmade weavings, rugs, blown-glass, ceramics, handcarved woods, baskets, paper sculptures and willow furniture as just some of the items McFall said she carries.

"We also have some furniture such as tables, cabinets, mirrors and chairs," McFall said. "We also have some lamps with blown-glass."

The shop, McFall said, complements Village Artistry I which is primarily an art gallery.

FOR THE WOLVES

For those who look forward to it every year, Marjorie Fontana once again will be selling her hand-knit scarves and walking sticks in front of the Carmel Post Office on Monday, Dec. 7. If it rains look for her the next clear day.

Usually, Fontana sells the items to benefit Greenpeace, but this year she's going to give the profits to Wolf Haven, an organization that shelters wolves, protects the species and educates the public about wolves.

Greenpeace hasn't fallen out of favor, Fontana said, it's just that it has international funding now and the wolves are in danger and in need.

She sells out quick, so get there early. She'll be there at 10

CROSSROADS

The Crossroads has many new shops and changes going on as those who read last week's column might note. I missed a few then, so let's try again.

• I Love My Room has just opened across from Chutney's Cafe and in the former location of Heritage and Heraldry.

Ethel Woods and her daughter Jody Coon have created a shop that children will feel right at home in.

It's all children's furniture, accessories, some toys and children's art supplies, Woods said.

High chairs, rocking horses, toy chests, desks and little chairs are just a few of the items that can be found in I Love My Room. Ages from birth to 14 year olds are catered to at the new shop.

The furniture can be custom-painted and custom-made. Choices offered to customers includes a wide selection colors and different designs that can be painted or carved onto furniture.

Woods said they also carry bedding, wallpaper selections and will perform interior design services if needed.

Woods is the former owner the Artist Palette in The Barny ard, which she recently closed to open the new store.

• Cinnamon Sam's at the entrance to Crossroads Boulevard brings cinnamon rolls extraordinaire to the peninsula. The bakery specializes in cinnamon rolls and bread and opens early for those who want to grab a bite to eat on the way to work. Warm rolls are always waiting, ready for consumption. Frosted or unfrosted, whichever is your preference.

The bakery is part of a chain that started in the Midwest and whose recipes remain a secret, according to owner Gary Blackwell.

• Remember those Rice Crispies cookies mother used to make? Well, Mr. Crispies in The Crossroads takes that idea and has refined it to an art. Called the cookie alternative owners Don and Donna Woods put the basic recipe together with a choice of different additions, like chocolate or peanul butter chips, marshmallows and more.

For the very adventurous, there's the Crispies' ice cream sandwich or Crispies' tart.

• Friends of the Sea Otter have moved their shop from The Barnyard to The Crossroads. The non-profit shop offers alkinds of educational material on the sea otter and gift: pertaining to sea otter gifts from all over. It's tax-deductable too.

SHAKE ROOFS need not burn or decay.

Fire officials are correct when they say wood shake or shingle roofs can be a fire hazard. It is proven that 80% of the natural oils in a shake or shingle roof leach out in five years. Shakes become like kindling wood, easily set afire as well as supporting fungus and insects. Add several years worth of leaf and pine needle accumulation and the roof is extremely susceptible to sparks from the chimney — the number one cause of roof fires. The roofs are then accidents waiting to happen as was seen with the Pebble Beach tragedy.

Much of the risk of roof fires can be minimized by preventative action. Wood roofs should be cleaned of leaves and pine needles on a regular basis. Fire retardents can be applied to existing wood roofs. One such fire retardant has been used successfully in California for over 40 years. Flame-X has been used on 35,000 homes, the equivalent of 70,000,000 square feet and has had no known roof fires. Flame-X has been extensively tested by licensed testing laboratories and has stood the test of time, both in exposure tests and actual hill brush fires. Shake Savers, Inc., headquartered in Cleveland, Ohlo, has a complete dealer network in California to service the market. Shake Savers, Inc. offers a free roof analysis to any homeowner who would be interested. The Shake Savers dealers will supply product literature, test data as well as explain their coating procedures.

Shake and shingle roofs can be protected from fire, fungus and insects. If you would like additional information and the dealer nearest you, call the Shake Savers home office at 1-800-24SHAKE or write to:

ORDINANCE CHANGE

Carmel real estate agents should aware that the Carmel Planning Commission in its meeting starting 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 9 in Carmel City Council Chambers will discuss revoking an ordinance that mandates that the city inspect properties before they are sold.

The ordinance states that it is to insure the buyer is aware of all aspects of the property before the sale is completed. On Jan. 1, 1987, a state law went into effect that virtually mandates the same thing, making the city ordinance

If the city decides to revoke the ordinance, city staff will no longer be conducting the inspections.

SPCA has volunteer opportunities

Volunteers are needed on an ongoing basis in a number of ways at the Monterey County SPCA. Among the volunteer jobs open at the facility are adoption counselors; educational guides; benefit shop representatives; pet therapists and wildlife, clinic and clerical assistants.

The last orientation session of 1987 will take place 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 12 in the Humane Education Building at the SPCA, located at 1002 Highway 68 aross from the Laguna Seca Recreation Area entrance.

To volunteer, call the Monterey County SPCA to register for the orientation session. From the Monterey area, call 373-2631. From the Salinas area, call 422-4721. Lunch will be provided.

Free parking initiated in Monterey

The City of Monterey has announced a holiday parking program in effect in the West Custom House Garage. Through Dec. 25, shoppers will be given two free hours of parking in the garage, located on Franklin and Tyler streets, just behind Wells Fargo Bank in downtown Monterey.

The free parking will be available between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. every day on the attendant parking levels, and street signs will be up to guide shoppers into the garage.

Help offered for the holiday blues

The Carmel Valley Community Youth Center is offering a support group to help people battle the anxiety sometimes brought on by the holiday season.

Among the issues to be addressed are loneliness, lack of money, handling mixed cultures and religions, and getting through the holidays without the use of drugs or alcohol.

Judy Masliyah, M.A., will facilitate the group. She has a part-time private practice and is a staff therapist at the Family Resource Center.

The group will meet 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. for five Sunday afternoons beginning on Dec. 6 and running through Jan. 3. It will take place in the Activity House at the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center on Ford Road in Carmel Valley

Fee is $20 for the series or $5 per session for CVCYC members and $30 for the series or $6 per session for nonmembers. For more information or to pre-register, call 659-3983 weekday mornings.

OWL'S NEST

SAN CARLOS BETWEEN OCEAN & 7TH

☐ YES ☐ NO

Now comes the really tough part. Scoring... If You Answered "YES" To Only 1 or 2 of the 18

You can relax.

The suspected golf addict is still pretty much a hopeless hacker, a casual swinger. Only rarely does he or she experience delusions of golfing grandeur.

The person is at a popular and fairly harmless stage we dall the "locker room golf lover."

You have nothing to fear. (Then again, it probably wouldn't hurt to put a bowling ball in his stocking this Christmas!) If You Answered "YES" To Any 3 Of The Questions...

That special someone has already gone from playing fast and loose to playing slow and serious. This person is at a very critical stage. They could go either way.

If two of the three "Yes" answers were on "The Back 9," I strongly advise you try easing your junior golf junkie into some diversionary activity like running with the bulls at Pamplona. Or going over Niagara Falls in a barrel. Better yet, forget the barrel. Have him tackle the Falls in his golf bag!

If You Answered "YES" To 4 Or More Of The Questions... That person you suspect has indeed strayed from the straight and narrow once too often. The die has been cast. The libido of the links has taken possession of the soul!

You are living with a hard-core ball beater. An over-heated swinger.

A golf ball junkie.

A passionate player par excellence! In a word...a Golfaholic!

Go ahead. Have a good cry. You've earned it. You have taken the first step. A lot of people never get this far. You're entitled to let it out.

Now that you know the truth, you must face it with courage. And a positive, productive course of action!

Junkyard Blues

JUST LAST week, a minor part on my car ceased to function due to some unknown mechanical disease. I went to the dealer and asked politely if they had a replacement for the defunct item.

"What year did you say that was?" growled a burly, greyhaired guy behind the counter.

"It's a '65," I replied innocently. He stared at me for a moment, eyes bulging unnaturally. His lips began to quiver and his face turned red. A stroke, I thought, no, no, possibly apoplexia. He then dropped his visage onto the partition between us and started beating the surface with his fists. I was about to leap over and administer cardio-pulmonary resuscitation when I heard his laughter.

This was no fit. This was pure, unadulterated hysteria. The harder he tried to stop, the more he laughed. After a bit, he almost recovered. He raised his head, wiped the tears from his eves and called loudly to a couple of buddies in the back room.

"Hey Joe, Steve! This guy wants a part for a '65. Whaahaa-haa..." Again, he disintegrated into a heap of Jello. His compatriots took up the chorus. Soon every employee in the place converged on the parts department. All were laughing and pointing while I stood there feeling strangely unclothed.

Finally, clutching his side, he blurted, between gasps, that they did not stock antique parts and I would have to go to a junkyard in order to find the necessary item. Junkyard! Junkyard! Of all the gall...

Chastised, I walked out of the room. Eyes lowered, chin on chest. From behind, I could still hear the fading laughter. Suddenly, I was enveloped by a familiar odor, the "new car" smell. I looked about. Somehow, in my haste to leave that place of ridicule, I had stumbled into the carpeted sanctum sanctorum, that heart of darkness, that pit of ultimate temptation where chrome and fresh paint abide, The New Car Showroom. Ouch. And, yes folks, I was sorely tempted. Feverishly, I went from model to model while the dark angel of a salesman hovered over my left shoulder whispering magical words and incantations designed to addle the brain and bend the fingers around a pen with which to sign the bottom line of a multi-year contract.

"Velour, form-fitting, bucket seats," he said. "V-8. extended mileage, power everything, air condition, wraparound stereo, speed, comfort..." and so on. My mind worked, as if in a dream, on unlikely solutions to the dilemma of financing. I could give up the coffee breaks for the next thousand years. Mortgage the wife and kids. Sell the rented house I live in. Go to a loan shark, etc.

Through glazed eyes, I caught a glimpse of the sticker price. The sight, like a splash of cold water, brought me out of my delirium. No, not this year. Like Dante, fleeing from the Mouth of Hell, I ran out into the fresh air and sunshine. By the time I reached my car, the perspiration on my forehead had dried, taking the euphoria with it. I leaned against its fender for a moment, listened to it creak in protest. Utterly disgusted, I kicked the tire a couple of times. I got in and turned the key. The old thing still started, trembling at first like an aged dog, still willing to serve its master even after being mistreated. Old faithful. The thought gave me the "guilts." I went home, washed and waxed the relic in way of reparation.

HE VERY next day, I went in search of a junkyard. I found what I was looking for on the outskirts of Moss Landing. At the gate, I was met by the grease-covered proprietor who, by his stature and jovial nature, resembled a negative of Santa Claus. I told him what I needed and he magnanimously waved his arm in the general direction of 40 acres, saying, "Yeah, I think I got one of them. Go see what you can find."

I wandered around aimlessly for a while. The junk heaps were peaceful, strangely inspiring. They put me in a reflective frame of mind. It occured to me that this cluttered field was a graveyard of technology, a place where dead machines are taken to rust in peace. A limbo, an intermediate rest stop from which metal carcasses are eventually plucked, and, through fiery transformation, made into something entirely new.

What stories would these rusting hulks tell if only they could talk? Stories of distant travel, of speed, of wind and acceleration, of joyous events occurring within their confines, of tragedy and death. Would they take on the characteristics of their owners? Would they feel? Would they understand the universal pain of abandonment and neglect?

Technology, I've heard it said, is but a tool. An extension of man's hand and mind. If this is true, then it naturally follows that here lie dreams, aspirations, virtue and vice. This is not just a dump. This is a bleak mirror reflecting a twisted skeletal view of human accomplishment. Here are examples of man's ability, ingenuity, imagination, triumphs and failures, all heaped together in a bizarre monument to the 20th century.

If Rodin had been a product of our time, he would have sculpted "The Thinker" seated on a broken-down Renault rather than on a rock, and "The Kiss" would have been consummated in its back seat. As I searched further, I began to understand Shelley who, upon sighting the ruins of Ramsey the Second's statue, penned the words: "Behold all ye mighty and despare... In some distant future, an archeologist will dig through this pile and marvel at our quaint simplicity and parochial egotism."

Heady stuff, no? Well not bad considering the junky origin of the thoughts. Anyway, I eventually found the necessary part, paid St. Nick, patted his dusty dog on the head and left. I stopped on a hill and looked back at the inspirational dump. From this elevated vantage point, the yard was only a small, rusty patch on the green, Elysian fields surrounding it. I could still make out two tiny figures in the shimmering distance. The man's grey shape looked more like a dark Charon now. waiting to ferry the next soul over the River Styx. His dog was Cerberus, guarding the gates of Hades

BY NOW, I am sure that you are all wondering what this stuff has to do with police work. Not much really, but, there is a connection.

My job gets under your skin and in spite of metaphyscial musings, some corner of the brain maintains an objective curiosity along with a tad of healthy suspicion. For instance, while scouring the wrecks, I noticed that most were relatively new. Certainly much newer than my own, and, if it had not been for one catastrophic collision, they would still be useful pieces of machinery. How then, did some of them come to such an untimely end? The answer was as obvious as an elephant in a teacup. There is no way to disguise him and even after he is gone, traces of his presence remain.

In many of the cars I found discarded beer cans or other empty containers of alcoholic beverages. It took no great leap of the imagination to surmise how these vehicles met their rusty fate. Some of them, a closer inspection revealed, also had the various tools and paraphernalia of drug abuse strewn about their interiors. How sad, how useless, how dear the cost that people should do this. What we do to our mechanical slaves is terrible, but what we do to ourselves is tragic. We as humans are the real losers. People like you and me. People who are victimized by the stupidity of a drug or alcohol induced moment of carelessness or irresponsibility. We who cannot be remanufactured or recycled. We, who are so much greater than our meager creations. Will we ever learn? I always hope so, but, I doubt it.

The holidays are almost upon us. A time when families and friends congregate to renew and strengthen their bonds of love and friendship. A time filled with merriment and joy. Consequently, it is also a time when travel on the roads is at its peak and the temptations to have that last drink are well nigh irresistable.

Should you be the object of such temptations, please remember my junkyard. Be selfish and think of yourself. Think of the possible cost to you in human terms. Think, that by preserving yourself, you may be saving someone else who would otherwise have been a victim of your folly. Think of the future with you as a part of it. Think of those you love and who love you. Save that stuff for another time.

I suppose I could continue and preach about the dangers of alcohol and drug intoxication. I won't do that. There is ample evidence of the tragic consequences on nightly newscasts. In spite of all that, no one ever believes that their addiction is anything serious or could ever be even remotely fatal. I am going to tell you that, as a human being, you have the capacity and ability to extract the most from life. There is no druginduced illusion or alcoholic haze that can, for long, substitute for or replace reality. Beauty, knowledge, inspiration, lie all around you. All you have to do is open your eyes and look for them. They can be found in the face of a loved one, a child's smile, a pet, a thundering sea, a colorful sunset or even a junkyard.

Oh yeah. Before I forget, my car is doing fine now. I don't think I'll ever sell it. We have been together for too long. With any luck at all, we will both survive, and, just possibly,

The saga of the Golden Bough

The play's the thing Wherein I'll catch the conscience of the King."

William Shakespeare (Hamlet)

STEP BACK in time with me to the early 1920s to a wispy little village edgmisnamed Pacific.

Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The village was drifting along in a horseand-buggy-and-Model-T haze of dreams and inspirations, seemingly awaiting the deft touch of a dramatic designer. He came in the person of Edward (Ted) Kuster.

Sensing the need in this creative and receptive community for a little theater of quality, Kuster collected his own dreams and talents. and with a determination unmatched in those years, began the formation of a theater both original in concept and design, which was to become a stage for actors of extraordinary

The first Golden Bough, as Kuster envisioned it, was to be built in a Northern Italian style with ornate grillwork flanking an arched doorway. His dream became reality. The Lombardy-type building was erected with intricately detailed iron hinges on heavy wooden doors opening into a spacious theater. But, dwarfing the rows of seats was the impression stage, 35 feet deep, with an enormous sky-dome on rollers which permitted it to move forward.

Most innovative was the rounded forestage, stepped toward the audience, allowing the cast to move up to the watchers, thus giving great depth and reality to the play. The orchestra pit was placed under the forestage with louvres permitting the music to come up as if from the very earth itself. The audience was never distracted by flailing arms, twitching violin bows or the gyrations of the orchestra conductor. The music and the action on stage were as if one. The most advanced and comprehensive lighting facilities behind and above the audience were installed, a first in little theater stage design.

Architecturally adventurous and expressive of what one appreciative viewer called "a singing imagination," the Theatre of the ing a beautiful bay of the turbulent Golden Bough was visited by many theater architects and many of its bold concepts were soon found in theaters in every part of the country.

> In one San Francisco Dally News review by Irving Pichel, author of Mondern Theaters, the Golden Bough was called "the loveliest theater in America."

> "I know of none to surpass it in the world," wrote Maurice Browne, recognized as the Father of the Little Theater movement. World premieres were held in the Golden > Bough during those early years. "Kuster's success in finally overcoming the opposition of a whole townful of reactionary theater amateurs can only be rightly estimated by those who have lived in an individualistic town like Camrel. To all antaxonism he has turned a smiling eye and a seemingly deaf car, at all times attending strictly to his business of producing diversified bills of plays with the utmost possible care." Footlights, Hollywood.

Kuster was a real trouper himself. He not only directed the plays but also took character parts. He enjoyed disguising himself with beards, wigs and "noses." He had an incredible energy and spirit.

ED KUSTER'S vision of the ideal theater was as novel as his nercention of how Carmel should evolve as a charming and picturesque and architecturally pleasing village.

He literally picked up a small cottage he had built earlier, and moved it from the corner of Dolores and Ocean Avenue down the street between Lincoln and Monte Verde, redesigning it into a storybook style weaving shop for his then-wife, Ruth. But, the tiny shop had a dual purpose. Kuster added a cubicle at one corner, tilted forward in medieval fashion, and sloped a "thatched" roof over the newly acquired box office. The building today is much the same as when Kuster added the finishing touches to his theater forecourt.

Inspired by the accolades which his box office received. Kuster went on to design and build two more buildings west to the corner of Monte Verde, a steep slanted-roof bungalow and a medieval-timbered two-story building with twin peaked roofs. All three buildings were a shelter for the flagstone courtyard behind and the theater which he constructed soon after

Ted Kuster once said (and here I quote his daughter and son, Marcia Kuster Rider and Colin Kuster): "I came to Carmel and built my theater because there were more actors. here than audience." He found that amateur actors were not jaded...were fresher and more receptive. He felt that it was not necessary to "direct" an actor, just nudge him a bit and bring out his talent. Guiding instead of directing was his method of making his plays come alive. The play must grow with the player so easily...that on opening night they scarcely realize they have been directed. This was the famed Arthur Hopkins idea of direction. Kuster brought the Three Penny Opera to Carmel, and used people "off the street," the butcher, baker and candlestick maker, so to speak.

The Golden Bough received national and international recognition.

Kuster produced classics, modern plays, pageants and original plays: Dan Totherorh's Princess Salome and Maurice Browne's ballad paly, The Mother of Gregory, both in 1924. Kuster's daughter, Marcia, played little Mary in The Women in the early 1940s, in the tradition of the theater that the show must go on, since she was quite ill with a virus and was popped back into bed after each perfor-

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

The American Automobile Association says that one of the most serious problems on our highways today is the growing number of older drivers who pose a danger to themselves and others because of physical or mental impairments. The AAA suggests that an older driver look for these warning signs: a growing number of nearmisses; a growing number of minor accidents; obvious trouble seeing pedestrians, cars and other objects in the road. If noted, it may be time to limit or stop driving.

According to a study by the United States House of Representatives Select Committee on Aging, mistreatment of the elderly, including financial abuse, now affects one in every 25 people over age 60.

Christ, the Savior, is born.

Silent night, holy night,
Son of God, love's pure light,
Radiant beams from Thy holy face,
With the dawn of redeeming grace,
Jesus, Lord, at Thy birth,
Jesus, Lord at Thy birth.

Silent Night (German)

Stille nacht, heilige nacht, Alles schläft, einsam wacht, Nur das traute, hoch heilige Paar, Holder Knabe im lokkigen Haar, Schlaf in himmlischer Ruh, Schlaf in himmlischer Ruh, Stille nacht, heilige nacht, Hirten erst kund gemacht, Durch der Engel Halleluja. Tont es laut von fern und nah, Christ der Retter ist da, Christ der Retter ist da,

Stille nacht, heilige nacht,
Gottes Sohn, or wie lacht,
Lieb' aus deinem gottlichen Mund
Das uns schlagt die rettende Stund'
Christ, in deiner Geburt,
Christ, in deiner Geburt.

Away In A Manger

Away in a manger, no crib for a bed.
The little lord Jesus laid down his sweet head.
The stars in the sky looked down where he lay.
The little Lord Jesus asleep on the hay.

The cattle are lowing, the poor Baby wakes.
But little Lord Jesus no crying He makes,
I love Thee, Lord Jesus, look down from the sky,
And stay by my cradle till morning is nign.

Be near me, Lord Jesus, I ask Thee to stay Close by me forever, and love me, I pray. Bless all the dear children in Thy tender care. And take us to heaven, to live with Thee there.

Angels We Have Heard

On High

Angels we have heard on high. Sweetly singing o'er the plains. And the mountains in reply Echoing their joyous strains.

Gloria in excelsis Deo. Gloria in excelsis Deo.

Shepherds, why this jubilee?
Why your joyous strains prolong?
What the gladsome tidings be.
Which inspire your heavenly song?

Gloria ...

Come to Bethlehem and see
Him whose birth the angels sing.
Come, adore on bended knee,
Christ, the Lord, the newborn King.
Gloria ...

INTRICATE CROSS-hatching adds depth and richness to Shirley Holt's illustrations for the holiday classic, The Night Before Christmas. The newly published volume succeeds the two books already published by Holt and writer Lee Richardson, Sophie's

Surpise and Little Red Riding Hood. The Pacific Grove artist, newly returned from a national tour, will autograph copies of The Night Before Christmas from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5 at Bookwords on Lighthouse Avenue in Pacific Grove.

A Christmas classic inspires intricate artwork

By ANNE PAPINEAU

A FEW years ago the public began to embrace Pacific Grove artist Shirley Holt, one of those rare Californians who has grown up and lived in the same community all her life. The popularity of her books and etchings has grown, and so proportionately has her world.

Thus the artist-next-door who painted store windows while a student at Monterey High now sets aside several weeks of the year to meet her fans on their home turf. Holt is newly returned from journeys to New York, El Paso and New England.

"My husband and I love to travel, but it's always good to come home," observes the artist.

Holt and her husband, Carmel Postmaster Jack Holt, make their home in a Pacific Grove house that captures, in three-dimensional form, much of the magic that permeates Shirley Holt's art.

Peeking from several corners are the small, silent creatures that she describes as "my props." Viewers familiar with Holt's art may recognize many of these figures since they populate her drawings and etchings. Stuffed bears and rabbits and whimsical papier-mache characters straight out of Alice in Wonderland share space with an authentic Spillman carousel horse, its carved mane dramatically flared.

There are family photographs in tiny frames (the Holts have four children), and Holt's paintings in big frames. The frames are large because many of her paintings are expansive. A 4-by-4-foot design in oil shelters the image of a dozing fawn.

"There are six birds disguised in it. Children love to look for them," she says of the untitled painting. "At the end of a day's painting, you feel like you've put in a day's work. Drawing is much more relaxing."

MANY COLLECTORS know Shirley Holt for her detail-rich drawings and etchings. With Lee Richardson she co-founded her own publishing company, ShirLee Publications. Together they have launched three books, each illustrated by Holt with intricate, endearing images.

Their first effort, Sophie's Surprise, is a bestseller in the collectible book market. That edition paved the way for their Little Red Riding Hood and the newly published The Night Before Christmas.

"We have 37,000 books in print so far," she notes. "They have been featured in the Neiman-Marcus Christmas catalog and at Harrods in London. Someone in Denver told me, 'I was just in Wiscassett, Maine, and I saw your book.' We say our readers are 2 to 92 years old — and they really are."

Richardson and Holt are sticklers for production quality. Each volume features foil stamped gold on its rich red cover, and Holt's artist's eye critiques the reproduction of her illustrations and even the texture of the paper.

Their newest volume, The Night Before Christmas, posed a special challenge for the artist.

"The story came out in 1823, and has never been out of print. I imagine hundreds of artists have illustrated it," she states. Holt spent two years on the project, striving to bring fresh imagery to one of her favorite childhood stories.

"The 'Visions of Sugarplums' dream is usually pictured with a cloud above the sleeping children and treats drawn there. I took a different approach, and that's what took so long. I wanted to be completely original,"

"I sat down and drew a Santa I did in the eighth-grade. It was amusing and that helped me. I painted a lot of store windows when I was young. I painted them for extra money, in Monterey, Pacific Grove, Seaside. They were tempera and very easy," she recalls.

In her small home studio Holt stores the preliminary sketches for a series of Alice in Wonderland paintings she hopes to undertake some day. She has been a member of the Carmel Art Association since 1973. She hopes to again assemble a collection of oils for a one-woman show.

Also in this studio is the press which she employs in making etchings from zinc plates. Holt works in both drypoint and acid etch methods. Drypoint is done by etching a line directly on the plate with a sharp tool. With the acid method she etches lines on a plate which has been treated with an acid-resistant covering. The plate, on completin, is put into nitric acid to etch the image.

Many collectors know Shirley olt for her detail-rich drawings and et-

A holiday spirit has already descended upon her home, although the work of decorating it for the season still lies ahead.

"Christmas is so important to me I want to stay home. When we come home to the peninsula, that green and the beautiful water, there's nothing like it."

Shirley Holt will autograph copies of The Night Before Christmas as well as her other books from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5. The booksigning will take place at Bookworks, 667 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove.

producing paintings, delicately drawn illustrations and both drypoint and acid etchings. (Photograph by Chuck Scardina).

Sunday sundown heralds arrival of St. Nick at 'Weihnachtsmarkt'

The Santa Claus story began with the legendary life of a Spanish Bishop, Nicholas of Myra.

For 1,700 years, the truths and fictions of St. Nicholas' life blended together to form a heritage embraced by cultures the world over.

Today in the United States, one authentic, Europeanstyle "Weihnachtsmarkt" celebrates the Feast Day of St. Nicholas on Dec. 6.

The "Weihnachtsmarkt". the German "Hallowed Eve Market", is found at the Barnvard at the mouth of the Carmel Valley.

Every year, on Dec. 6, the merchants and restauranteurs set up colorful tables of foods and Christmas items in the famous Barnyard gardens. All day, people browse among the wares enjoying jugglers, musicians, clowns and even an organ-grinder.

As dusk approaches, the crowd gathers around the huge Christmas free standing silent in an open courtyard. Suddenly, with a flourish of trumpets, St. Nicholas arrives on a great white horse accompanied by his servant "Black Peter." He waves to the children, red robes and white beard flowing. He stops, raises his golden staff and as if by magic the tree bursts into color and the childrens' choir joins in song.

For the rest of the evening, as St. Nicholas greets each child from a golden throne, it is evident in the faces of the children that through the centimes.

New Albion Brass Quintet performs at Carmel Mission

ONE DOESN'T realize how much sound brass instruments can produce until one hears five of them playing together in the Carmel Mission Basilica. The New Albion Brass Quintet set the echoes going and my ears ringing during their concert Sunday night.

Karen Baccaro and Adam Gordon, trumpets; Keith Green, horn; Rod Apfel, trombone and Forrest Byram, tuba, are the youthful and personable members of the quintet. All five of them have performed with the Monterey County Symphony and Gordon and Byram are currently principal trumpet and tuba, respectively, this season.

A brass quintet is not a common musical commodity since it is not usually a commercially viable entity. It is hard to form and to keep in existence. Also an evening of unrelieved brass music is not always interesting since it can easily lack variety.

As is usual with wind or brass groups, the New Albion players' grasp of 20th century music specifically written for their instruments is excellent. "The Music Hall Suite" by Joseph Horovitz, while sounding more like circus music, was evocative and colorful. The group made an interpretive tour de force of the music, playing with precision and wit. The music fit the instruments, calling forth sparkle and color. The "Soft Shoe Shuffle" and the high-kicking "Les Girls" were almost visible. Balance and values were all fully present.

WHALING STATION INS

763 Wave St. • (408) 373-3778 DINNER NIGHTLY FROM 5 PM • FREE PARKING "Timespan" (1987) by Margaret Brouwer was recently given its West Coast premiere by the group. This is difficult music which explores the full range of brass capability, but ends up more as a collection of effects than as music. "Rondeau Squared" was a brief, resounding succession of massive chords, "Ancient Calls," supposedly embodying primitive elemental sounds, became foghorn-like. And since what starts soft must become ear-splitting-loud, it did, and then as expected sank back down again. "Shiny Metal" was fast moving, rhythmically intricate, very loud and very dissonant. But, it was exciting and extremely well played.

Everything else on the program was arranged and these numbers had lesser levels of musical success. The humor of "il est bel et bon" by Passereau didn't come through at all. The "Contrapunctus IV" by Bach with its monumental fortes and growling tuba bass lines was completely out of character, making Bach sound anachronistic.

Benjamin Britten's "Simple Symphony" was written for strings and trombonist Apfel's transcription for brasses was only fitfully successful. The quieter moments were sensitively and satisfyingly put across with fine, well balanced ensemble work. Then along would come one of those express train fortissimos which was even more unwelcome in contrast.

Three Catalonian dances ended the program. They took on the flavor of bull ring music at times, an inescapable result because of the heavy brass timbres in the reverberating reaches of the Mission. These are fine musicians, but their choice of program and locale undermined their efforts.

Volunteers needed during holidays

Northern Monterey County's Red Cross will start a mobile unit for blood donations soon and is in need of many types of volunteer workers.

Medical staffers and Red Cross officials will train volunteers at Community Hospital. The areas of need are registered nurses, both working and retired; clerical, interviewing and canteen workers.

If you can help in this project call Volunteers in Action at 373-6177.

The Holiday Project of Monterey County needs volunteers to wrap and distribute more than 1,000 gifts. The gifts are donated by local businesses and individuals and are presented to children and adults at local hospitals, rest homes and other institutions.

To be prepared for the arrival of Santa Claus, meetings take place 7 to 10 p.m. the third Monday of each month at the Monterey Public Library. At the meetings, new volunteers are told the purpose and goals of the Holiday Project, how much assistance is needed and where.

You're a good ole man, Charlie Brown

Can it be that the Peanuts gang is getting old? Does it really matter? The timeless qualty of Linus, Lucy, Schroeder, Peppermint Patty, Snoopy, and yes, Charlie Brown will prevail. One recent effort to make the gang survive is the production of You're a Good Man Charlie Brown at the Cabaret Theater at Fort Ord.

The set is a woodsy cartoon frame and the action is the non sequitury events of cartoon strips as befits the magical youth of these special children. I mean, let's face it, how many kids speak such quasi-profundities as Lucy, Charlie, Schroeder et al? Each scene is poignant and telling. You're waiting to see people in cartoon roles; paying homage to the newspaper characters. The cast does a creditable job in making the whole thing fresh and bright.

Martin Burt is Charlie; Nancy Brown is Lucy; Sherry Shaw is Peppermint Patty; Jim Sutty is Linus; Jon Dewey is Schroeder. Some get more time in the spotlight than others but none slights his/her role. The enthusiasm that the troupe shows is admirable. Most notable to me were Nancy Brown and Jim Sutty. Nancy's rendition of Lucy adds an impish quality to the role that I found genuinely pleasing. Jim Sutty's Linus caught the precocious yet insecure tyke at just the right angle for me.

Laura McEvoy (Evita, Oklahoma) plays a winsome Snoopy holding forth from the famous doghouse. Ms. McEvoy also choreographs the entire troupe. In fact there is a lot of doubling up. Several of the cast members also helped with set construction. Principal construction crew was Brownie Troop 2146, however.

Sherilyn Clarke's costuming is cute in the best sense of the word. Charming and entirely appropriate. The addition of the occasional sight gag is a bonus, such as Peppermint Patty's peppermint stripes or Snoopy's tuxedo "tails."

Michael Cheak designed the set and directed the characters through it. After one sees a number of Cheaky productions, one wonders if there is anything that he cannot invigorate and direct effectively. If we could only lure him into the mainstream, what new wonders could he perform?

Musical accompaniment is by keyboard, synthesizer, and percussion including marimba. Marvin McKnight, Rosanne Yadegari and Joe Gray serve up sprightly background sounds for the gang to frolic to.

Can you imagine when Doonesbury or Bloom County or Far Side become musicals? A thought like that shows us how far we've come in the evolution of the comics. But then there's Calvin and Hobbes to take us back to the ingenuous. That tiger will be as much fun as Snoopy to choreograph.

Leave a good 30-40 minutes or more from Monterey to get to the Cabaret Theater at Fort Ord. Once through the gate, you have to get a visitor's pass. Present driver's license, registration and proof of insurance. It's a pain, but it doesn't take that long.

You're a Good Man Charlie Brown plays Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays at 8 p.m. through Dec. 13th with 2 p.m. matinees for children on Saturdays, Dec. 5th and 12th.

The trio produced a collection of cartoon art to be exhibited through March 1988 in the Monterey Peninsula Airport Terminal.

Top-flight cartoonists show work at airport

A HUMOROUS LOOK at travel and tourism will be captured in Tour de Farce, a cartoon exhibition inaugurating a new art program at the Monterey Peninsual Airport Terminal building.

Opening Saturday, Dec. 5, the show features the work of three nationally famous peninsula artist-residents: Gus Arriola, creator of GORDO; Eldon Dedini, cartoonist for New Yorker, Playboy, and other national publications, and Hank Ketcham, father of "Dennis the Menace".

Art at the Airport is supported by a grant from the Monterey County Cultural Council. It was concieved by the Monterey Peninsula Airport as a way to please the one million people who pass through the terminal each year.

The exhibition includes 60 individual cartoons, comic strips, and life-size blow-ups of comic characters set against a background of the scenic wonders of the Monterey Peninsula and its surrounding communities. Chuckles are promised airport users and visitors.

Book scrutinizes U.S. press, foreign policy

Professor William A. Dorman will be the guest of the Thunderbird Bookshop from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5, at a reception for his latest book, The U.S. Press and Iran - Foreign Policy and the Journalism of Deference.

In their book, Dorman and co-author Mansour Farhang argue that uncritical and complacent media coverage of the Middle East from 1951 to 1978 contributed to our government's failure to predict or come to terms with Iranian revolution. They conclude that while the press is not responsible for our foreign policy failures, what is published does affect the public's ability to evaluate policy decisions and to learn from such failures.

Professor Dorman recently addressed the New Forum, Carmel, an organization dedicated to promoting peace. His topic was the subject of press relations and the state of modern national security.

The Thunderbird Bookshop is located in the Barnyard at Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road.

Carmel Valley's Christmas tree shines again

FOR MANY residents of Carmel Valley, the holiday season begins with the lighting of the Christmas tree on Saddle Mountain. Since 1963, the Christmas tree has brightened the holiday season. Traditionally, the tree lights come on in conjunction with a party. When the tree was first lit by a group of Mid Valley neighbors, they threw a neighborhood party. The Mid Carmel Valley Volunteers took over the tree project in 1976. Since then, the tree lights have come on with a ceremony and open house at the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Station. Each November, the volunteers make the trek to the tree to prepare it for the upcoming holiday season. The tree lighting ceremony and open house is held on the first Friday of December each year.

This year, the holiday season will officially begin with the annual tree lighting ceremony and open house on Friday, Dec. 4. The open house begings at 5 p.m. The tree lighting takes place between 6:30 and 7 p.m.

Each year the Mid Valley Volunteers invite a local resident to be the official tree lighter. This year the tree will be lit by Barbara Proctor, resident of Tierra Grande. Proctor is a valued friend of the fire department. She will share her community spirit with all those who attend the open house. Egg nog and goodies will be served and everyone is invited. It is a get-together for friends and neighbors.

Carl Jung group sponsors book discussions

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung will present the last two discussions in their "Bringing Books to Life Series" on Friday and Tuesday, Dec. 4 and 8.

The Friday, Dec. 4 gathering will focus on Addiction to Perfection: The Still Unravished Bride. Written by Marion Woodman, a Jungian analyst practicing in Toronto, the book celebrates the integration of body and spirit and shows what this can mean to a woman's personal independence.

Woodman is also the author of The Pregnant Virgin: Psychological Transformation, which is the subject of the Tuesday, Dec. 8 discussion. This book is about overcoming addictions — to food, drugs, work, sex and Both discussions are open to all, including those who have not read the books. The programs begin at 7 p.m. at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores in Carmel.

Discussion leaders for the program are Marilyn Sanders of Carmel Valley and Joseph Pagano of Monterey. No fees are charged, but voluntary donations are requested.

For additional information, call 649-8809, or write 853 Pacific St., Monterey, 93940.

ONSTAGE

The Buried Child

Playwright Sam Shepard probes deeper into the disintegration of the American family in Buried Child. The Pulitzer Prize-winning play opens Thursday, Dec. 3 in the Monterey Peninsula College Theater.

Conrad Selvig directs the production, set in a squalid farmhouse and replete with insidious suggestiveness. The cast includes Ron Cohen, Lori Crisan, Brian Mahoney, John Mockett, John Rowe, Michael Ufford and Sandy Williams.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Dec. 3-5, and 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6.

Admission is $10 general; $7 for students, senior citizens and the military and $4 for children under 12.

Tickets can be obtained at Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561, or through the Monterey Peninsula College box office, 646-4213. The college is at 980 Fremont Blvd., Monterey.

Harvey

Mary Chase's classic comic fantasy, Harvey, will be staged at Carmel High School.

The C.H.S. production wil feature Jeff Perkins as Elwood P. Dowd; Jennifer Leo as his sister, Vita Louise; Heather Arnold as Vita's daughter, Myrtle Mae. Phillip Schwyzer plays Dr. Chumley of Chumley's Rest. On his staff are Jimmee Greco, Andrew Dows and Brian Christiansen. Ivy Mayer will play Elwood's Aunt Ethel Chauvenet; Chris Brennan will be Judge Omar Gaffney and Aaron Riddell will play T.J. Lofgren, the cab driver.

Harvey will play at 7:30 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Dec. 3-5, in room 2 at Carmel High School. Tickets are $3 for adults, $2 for students.

I Remember Mama

I Remember Mama, the story of a Norwegian immigrant family living in San Francisco in the early 1900s, will open Saturday, Dec. 5 on the Main Stage of the Performing Arts Center at Hartnell College, Salinas.

Tickets to I Remember Mama are $13 for Friday and Saturday performances and $11 for Sunday matinees. A $1 discount is offered senior citizens and children under 12. For more information or reservations, call 375-2111, 758-1221 or 649-5561.

A Christmas Carol

The GroveMont Theater Arts Center presents Charles Dickens' yuletide classic, A Christmas Carol, opening Thursday, Dec. 3. The production, a new adaptation by John Rousseau, continues at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays until Dec. 20.

The cast will take on multiple acting roles and weave their characters into the fabric of the play. The production, directed by Rousseau, will feature Jim Jensen in the part of Scrooge.

Admission is $6; $4 for students, senior citizens and military. Advance tickets are available at Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. Reservations can be made at the theater, 649-6852. The GroveMont Theater Arts Center is at 320 Hoffman (between Lighthouse and Hawthorne) in New Monterey.

You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown

The Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre continues its staging of You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown, a light-hearted musical filled with comic candor and the abandon of early childhood.

The characters have marched off the pages of the funny papers and into this musical comedy. As the scenes of one day in the life of Charlie Brown unfold, we see a crabby but lovable Lucy, the thoughtful blanket fanatic Linus, a sensitive six-year-old musician named Schroeder, Peppermint Patty and batting ace and hopeless romantic, Charlie Brown himself.

Actors Nancy Brown, Jim Sutty, Jon Dewey, Sherri Shaw and Martin Burt bring the human characters to life, and Laura McEvoy frolics as the exuberant beagle, Snoopy.

You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown plays at 8 p.m. Fridays through Sundays until Dec. 13. There will also be children's matinees at 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5 and 12. Admission is $6 general, $4 with military discount and $2 for children under 12 during matinee performances only.

The Cabaret Theatre is on the corner of Fourth Avenue and Fourth Street in Building 1288, Fort Ord. For more information, call 242-6337.

Season of Thanks

The Staff Players Repertory Company celebrates the holidays with its production of Thornton Wilder's Season of Thanks. The ensemble presents two of Wilder's one-act plays that convey a true revelation of the deeper meaning of family life.

The Happy Journey to Trenton and Camden follows a father, mother and younger sister and brother on their drive to see a married older sister. The Long Christmas Dinner covers 90 years in the home of a Midwestern clan.

Season of Thanks plays at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2:30 p.m. Sundays until Dec. 19.

Tickets are $8 general and $6 for senior citizens and full time students. For reservations call 624-1531.

Godspell

The New Wharf Theatre in Monterey provides the setting for the Frohman Academy production of Godspell. The musical is directed and choreographed by John Pasqualetti.

The show features such songs as "Day by Day," "Turn Back, Oh Man" and many others.

The cast of Godspell includes both community actors and Frohman Academy students.

Godspell continues at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 7:30 p.m. Sundays until Jan. 10. The theater is located on Old Fisherman's Wharf.

Tickets are priced at $9 Thursdays, $10.50 Fridays, $11.50 Saturdays and $9 Sundays. There is a $1 per ticket discount for students, military and senior citizens. Group rates are available.

Reservations can be made by calling the Wharf Theatre box office, 649-2332; or Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561.

Magic: Close Up for Christmas

Master illusionist, magician and sleight-of-hand artist Roy Slater will stage a new one-man show, Magic: Close Up for Christmas. It is presented at 8 p.m. Tuesdays and Wednesdays through Dec. 23 at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center, 320 Hoffman (between Lighthouse and Hawthorne) in New Monterey.

Slater's new show will concentrate on close up sleight-ofhand illusions in addition to an assortment of classic and modern magic. Ticket prices are $6 general and $4 for students, senior citizens and children. For advance tickets, call Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. For reservations, call GroveMont at 649-6852.

Muse of Fire: An Evening with Shakespeare

Friends of Photography show honors locals

THE EXHIBITION "Photography on the Monterey Peninsula, the New Generation" opens Friday, Dec. 4 in the Friends of Photography Gallery and continues through Jan. 31. A reception for the artists will be held in the gallery, in Carmel's Sunset Center at San Carlos and Ninth, from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday. The exhibition and the reception are open to the public. Regular gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. every day.

"Photography on the Monterey Peninsula, the New Generation" presents recent work by six photographers living on the Monterey Peninsula who have received national recognition for their work-Martha Casanave, Tom Millea, Chris Rainier, John Sexton, Jerry Takigawa and Huntington Witherill.

This exhibition is the final presentation by The Friends of Photography in Carmel. The offices of The Friends have been moved to San Francisco, where the organization will establish the Ansel Adams Center as its permanent home. Creation of an exhibition space in Sunset Center was the first priority of the board of trustees following the founding of the organization in January 1967. The inaugural presentation, in June of that year, included photographs by Ansel Adams, Wynn Bullock, Imogen Cunningham, Dorothea Lange, Brett Weston, Edward Weston and Minor White. Since then, more than 200 separate exhibitions have been presented in the gallery.

The long involvement of photographers with subject matter along the central California coast is widely known. While individuals such as Carleton Watkins depicted the Monterey Peninsula region during the late 1880s, and resident commercial photographers documented the urban development of the area during the early years of the twentieth century, it was not until the 1920s, when first Johan Hagemeyer and then Edward Weston moved to Carmel, that an ongoing tradition of creative photography became established locally. Weston, Ansel Adams, Willard Van Dyke, Sonia Noskowiak and others associated with Group f.4 formed an informal "first generation" of photographers who lived and worked in the area.

Photographers such as Brett Weston, Morley Baer, Wynn Bullock and others form a kind of "second generation." While all of them also lived in other places originally, they chose to move to the Peninsula specifically for its photographic tradition. The general tenor of their work continued the aesthetics of sharp focus, f/64 photography that had been expounded by Weston and Adams, and each of them became nationally known, as did those from the generation before them.

"Photography on the Monterey Peninsula, the New Generation" demonstrates that the Monterey Peninsula continues to attract photographers, but that the nature of their photographic concerns has changed greatly. The six artists included in the show have all, like those before them, moved to the Monterey Peninsula from other areas.

What sets them apart from the previous photographers is that their photographic involvement is as much informed by the creative interests within the national photographic community as by the specific aesthetic traditions of the Monterey Peninsula, view cameras and the zone system, and all have previously been included in solo or group exhibitions in the Carmel gallery.

The exhibition builds on this idea of deversity of interest by presenting two separate groups of work from each artist. In some cases, they are images from two different projects; in others, two groups of subjects within the same general genre are being shown. These six photographers have exhibited and published their work nationally, and all have taken an active role teachin workshops throughout the country. Each has taught in workshops sponsored by The Friends.

Martha Casanave has been a resident of Monterey since 1967. She received a B.A. degree in Russian language and literature from the Monterey Institute of International Studies in 1969. Primarily self-taught as a photographer, she has worked as a freelance photographer and instructor since 1976. Since 1984 she has been leading annual photographic tours of the Soviet Union, and in recent years she has taught workshops on the nature of the creative process as well as on photography.

Casanave's extensive background in Russian history and culture has given her insight into the tourist experience in the country. This has resulted in a series of hand-colored photographs that depict the difficulty foreigners have in understanding what they see when they travel in Russia. By altering the expected colors in the images, Casanave explores our perceptions of Russian life and the facades the Russian people present to foreigners.

The second group of prints included in the exhibition are toned, black and white pinhole photographs made with a 4 x 5 camera. Developed over the past three years, the pinhole series began as portraits of individual women, but the specific nature of the pinhole image led Casanave to see the work in a more general way as depicting collective memories and states of being she shares with other women.

Tom Millea moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1973. He received his B.A. degree in history from the University of Western Connecticut in 1966. During this period he also became involved with photography. He worked with Paul Caponigro in Connecticut, and during the 1960s he served as director of the Underground Gallery in New York City. Upon moving to California, he taught photography for a number of institutions in both workshop and classroom situations.

Millea was among the first group of contemporary artists to explore the use of platinum and palladium printing techniques, and he has printed exclusively with those materials since 1973. In 1983, he began an investigation of the use of 35mm Polaroid black and white film as the basis for his platinum prints. The specific properties of this film, combined with the degree of enlargement necessary, give Millea's recent work a distinctive quality that reaches beyond what one normally expects from platinum prints.

In this exhibition, he is showing two groups of photographs. The first is from an ongoing series of portraits. While a concern for removing masks—from the subject as well as from the relationship between artist and viewer—is a major aspect of all of his work, it is particularly true of these portraits. The second group of prints is from the larger series "Fallen Roses," which deals with separation and loss on an emotional and visual level. "Fallen Roses" is the second group of the "Passage Trilogy," which also includes the series "A Passage of the Heart" and "A Requiem for Marty Carrick."

Chris Rainier received his B.F.A. degree in photography from Brooks Institute in Santa Barbara, California, in 1980, after which he moved to Carmel. He seved as assistant to Ansel Adams from 1981 to 1984, and for the Ansel Adams Studio until 1985. His early work in the medium was strongly influenced by the aesthetic traditions of the Monterey Penisula, but during the past four years he has developed a deep interest in documentary photography. Using small and mediumformat cameras, he has traveled widely in China, India, Southeast Asia, North Africa and Central and South America, photographing on personal projects as well as under the auspices of agencies such as the International Red Cross, UNESCO and the Smithsonian Institution.

In 1983, Rainer served as photographic consultant for the Introduction to the World Conservation Strategy, produced by the World Wildlife Fund. He was a founding member, in 1986, of Photo Concern, Inc., a non-profit humanitarian photography organization based in Point Richmond, California. The projects Rainier has pursued reflect his concerns for global environmental problems, refugee situations and traditional cultures in transition.

In this exhibition. Rainier is showing a group of color photographs made in the spring of 1986 in the Ethiopian refugee camps in the Sudan that were done for the International Red Cross. These are complemented by a set of black and white prints from independent travels the following summer in Irian Jaya, the western, Indonesian portion of the island of New Guinea, where the people are only beginning to feel the effects of westernization.

John Sexton received a B.A. degree in art from Chapman College in Orange. He moved to Carmel in 1979 to become assistant to Ansel Adams, a position he held until 1982. Since that time he has served as a consultant to a number of photographic manufacturers. Of all the artists included in Photography on the Monterey Peninsula, he is perhaps the most deeply involved in teaching workshops. Among other programs, he was a founder of the Owens Valley Workshop and he has led photographic tours of both China and Japan.

Sexton is showing two groups of work in this exhibition that differ markedly from the black and white landscapes for which he is primarily known. The first of these is a group of medium format architectural color studies made during two trips to China. The second set includes prints that depict the machinery within a coal-fired power plant in Wisconsin, with the gleaming pipes and sensuous light betraying the raw power produced in the cavernous rooms.

Jerry Takigawa received a B.A. degree in art with an w Jerry Takigawa received a B.A. degree in art with an emphasis in painting from San Francisco State University in 1967. He studied photography with Don Worth and initially used the medium as a tool in doing photorealist paintings and drawings.

In 1969, he made the transition from being a painter to working exclusively with the camera; his early photography was concerned with sociological and ecological documentation. He moved from the San Francisco Bay Area to the Monterey Peninsula in the early 1970s. By 1977, Takigawa had made a break from his traditional approach. He is presently working as a designer and photographer on the Monterey Peninsula, and he has received a number of honors for his graphic design work as well as for his photographs.

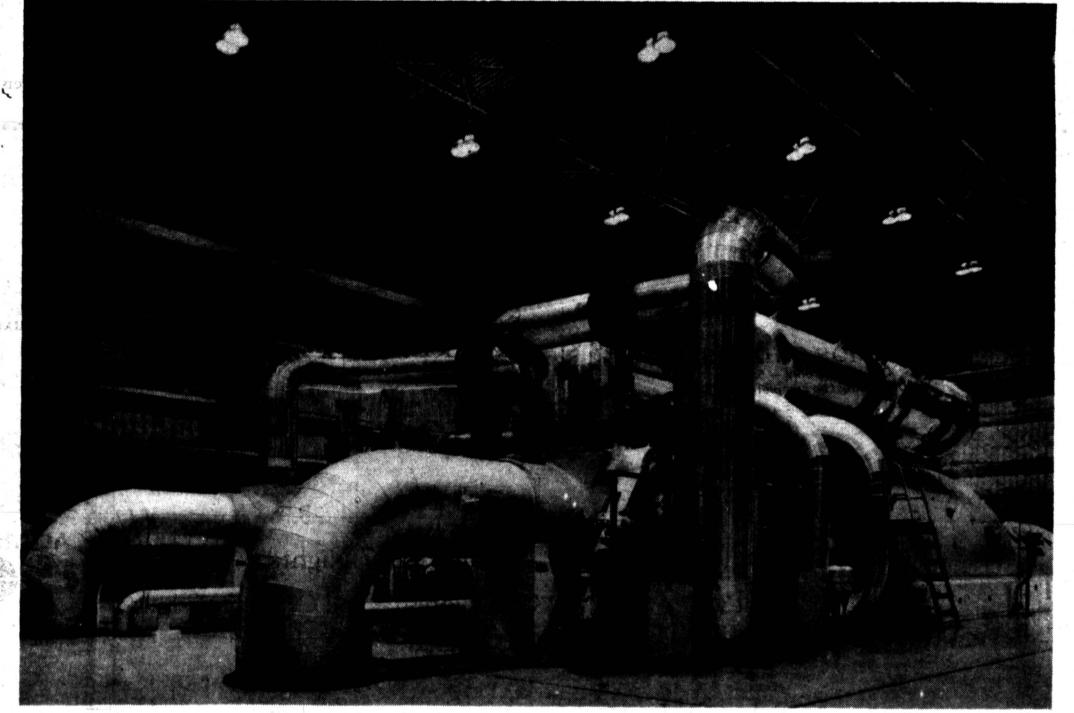

Takigawa is showing two sets of Cibachrome prints from the ongoing Kimono series. The first group of these, begun in 1981, was an extension of a separate series of photographs he had done in the studio utilizing pieces of fabric to introduce specific areas of color into the frame. Trying a similar image on impulse while traveling, he was immediately struck by the possibilities of working outside and was drawn by the spiritual, symbolic connotations of the floating, flowing qualities of the fabric against the forms of landscape and sky.

In the second group, completed during the past two years, Takigawa has photographed the colored fabrics floating against a background of urban structures, this time with the spiritual implications of the fabric more consciously placed against what he calls the "hard gray" architectural environments.

Huntington Witherill initially studied for a career in music performance and orchestration before beginning his work in photography. A resident of the Monterey Peninsula since 1972, he was previously a student of photography at both the Califronia Institute of the Arts and Santa Monica City College.

The prints included in the exhibition, from 5 x 7-inch negatives, reflect the distinctive, high-key printing style Witherill has developed. One group depicts details of carved marble slabs or small areas of natural forms excised from the landscape, while the other presents the large scale landscapes that are frequently associated with Witherill's work. In both sets of prints, the light tonality of the images creates an illusion of compressed space that extends the impact of the prints beyond a direct presentation of the subject. In his work, Witherill makes a conscious attempt to play upon interrelationships of light and substance in both natural and man-made objects. He is interested in the delicate and intricate nature of those objects, yet he also wishes to portray the essence of light itself. which in its turn becomes a primary subject of the photograph.

David Featherstone, Director of Publications for the Friends of Photography, served as curator for Photography on the Monterey Peninsula, the New Generation.

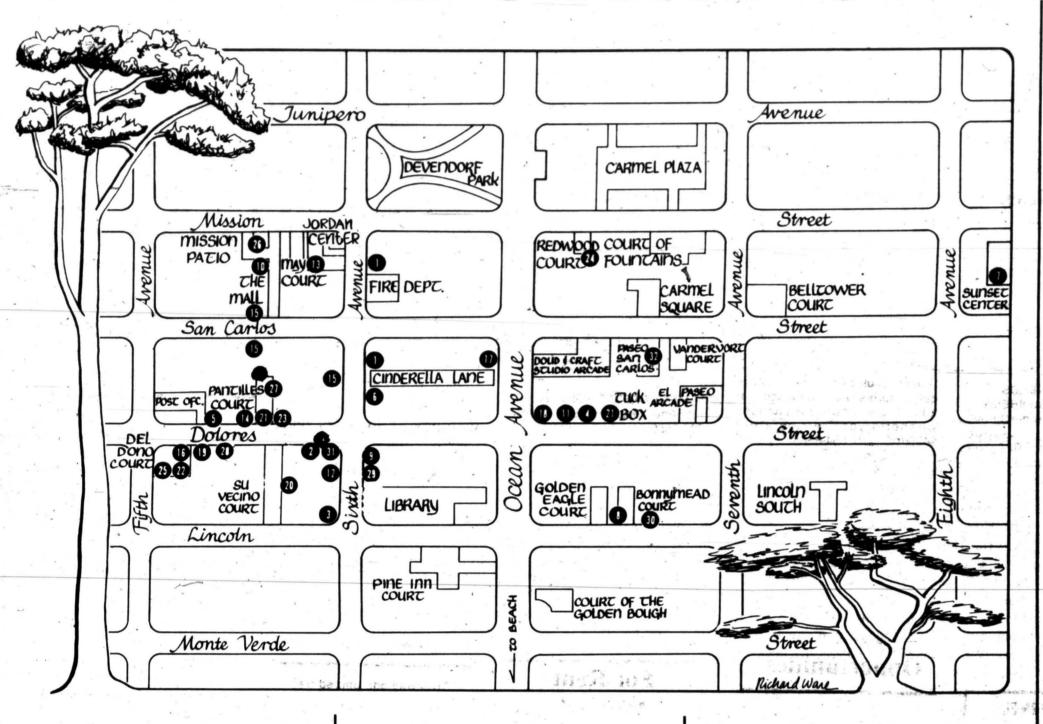

JOHN SEXTON'S silver print titled Steam Turbine Generator, Alma, Wisconsin, 1987, is included in the exhibit, "Photography on the Monterey Peninsula, the New Generation." The show, the final exhibit at the Friends of Photography Gallery in Carmel, opens with a reception on Friday, Dec. 4.

How to Stretch Out in Style

The lot is huge, a full acre and a quarter. A long drive leads down from the road, at 204 Upper Walden in Carmel Highlands, and loops around in front of the house. On the way, you'll pass through a grove of towering Monterey pines. You're several hundred feet above the ocean to the west, and through the trees you'll catch glimpses of blue water.

The house itself is about 100 feet wide and 30 feet deep. The exterior is board and batten, painted an off-white with sky blue trim. A long deck, nearly 75 feet, crosses the back and is reached through 3 sets of sliding glass doors. At the far end is a giant hot tub. You feel like you're in the wilds, and the silence is deafening.

Inside, a giant beam of redwood stretches from one end of the house to the other raising the ceilings to a pitch of around 25 degrees. In most rooms the cross planking is knotty pine stained a redwood color, though in 2 of the 3 bedrooms the ceilings are light-stained. All the walls are white.

There's a great feeling of spaciousness here. You step through a tiled entrance hall to the 22x20 living room, windows along the west, a stone fireplace on the north and the open kitchen across a service counter to the east. This is replete with oak cabinets, furnished with the finest in modern appliances. A skylight keeps it bright by day, and 2 oak-trimmed chandeliers do the job at night.

A long interior corridor stretches from the living room all the way back to the master suite on the south. Along the way, you pass the large dining room adjoining the living room, a bathroom and  $2_{\mathbb{F}}$  bedrooms, all generous in size.

The master bedroom is 13x18, carpeted like the rest of the house, with a roomy dressing room closet and another wall wide closet. Glass doors open to the deck and hot tub, and the bath is...well, stylish.

An oversize 2 car garage is on the north end and includes laundry facilities. The backyard is spacious, with fruit trees. There's track lighting in living room and master bedroom, plus a variety of interesting chandeliers.

One would hardly call this place "cute;" it's too big for that, too stretchable, too comfortable. Or "charming;" it's too new. The price is $349,000.

No. 44

Chances are you don't know where FRASER WAY is. So pay attention and amaze your friends with your knowledge of Carmel trivia. It's a short, one-block street that runs from Casanova to Camino Real below 13th and just north of Santa Lucia. It's the only deviation from the otherwise geometrically perfect gridwork of streets laid out in 1902 by square-rigged developers Devendorf and Powers. And it's a monument to the great Fraser Feud of 1906-14. The Fraser brothers, Hector and Wilbur, owned the whole block, a gift from their father, Hector, Sr. Wilbur had an ambition to create a public inn which he would call Fraser Ranch. "You're nuts," said Hector. "This is a quiet, residential community." The arguement raged for 9 years and was settled only when Hector cut off the lower tip of the block and deeded it to Wilbur "in fee simple." Today there are 4 houses on Fraser Way the dividing line, none an inn. And, if you believe this story, we have some stock in the new bridge that will cross Carmel Bay that we'd like to discuss with you.
